Many Happy Returns
The Bigger the Better
Wives of Convenience
Big Boys and Girls

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1928, by Star Co.

YESTERDAY PRESIDENT COOLIDGE and his wife celebrated the 23d anniversary of their wedding. For the first time their son, John, now working for a railroad was not at home. The nation wishes them many more anniversaries, with thanks to the President for good, hard work and much common sense at a difficult time in the country's history, and thanks to Mrs. Coolidge for taking care of the President and representing American women so admirably in the White House.

In Britain, the Anglo-Persian and Dutch Shell Oil Companies are gradually uniting. Wise Britain intends to build up an oil power strong enough to fight the world, and especially Standard Oil of America.

This country, some years ago, horrified to discover that Standard Oil was worth a thousand million dollars, chopped it up into little pieces. Now the pieces are worth ten times as much as the old mamma octopus was worth.

Government should supervise and control business, not foolishly interfere with its growth by treating it as Chinese used to treat the feet of their daughters.

The motto of the United States in everything should be, "The BIGGER THE BETTER."

The Rev. Dr. Poling, of the Fifth Avenue Marble Collegiate Church in New York, is horrified, as he well may be, by lack of morality aboard some barges in the Hudson river.

The men are paid too little, forcing 16 to live in one cabin, which is bad enough.

But there is worse. On some barges, says the Rev. Dr. Poling, "wives of convenience are supplied to the men." They are not real wives.

That, as the reverend doctor says, is fearful to contemplate.

But what about wives gentlemen of Fifth Ave. sometimes marry, only to get rid of them shortly in Reno or Reno? Are they not also "wives of convenience?"

Americans are not going backward, PHYSICALLY, at least. Girls are taller and stronger than ever. And among 100 candidates reporting for freshman crew practice at Cornell yesterday, 48 were 6 feet tall: a good sign.

A well-balanced body, of good size, about 6 feet, is the right sort.

In old days, a Napoleon had to be short. If he had been a little taller he would have been killed by the first of the bullets that went an inch above his head.

No wonder American boys and girls grow. The nation's food bill is TWENTY-THREE THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS.

Forty-seven thousand, nine hundred and eighty-five factories of different kinds turn out food products, assisted by 20,000,000 farmers. And 23 per cent of the food plants produce nine-tenths of the food products. Shiver at that, if you dread monopoly.

It is a rich country that can afford to eat twenty-three billions worth of food in a year. Much of it, unfortunately, is wasted.

This country, after all it's spending for food, clothing and other necessities, has a "social surplus" of TEN THOUSAND MILLION DOLLARS, more than the country needs for its living. That is what builds up values, savings bank accounts and Wall street prices.

Dr. Gratz, editor of the Epworth Herald, blames American parents for this "unspanked" generation. Says he:

"The youth of today learns lessons of banditry, petting, free love and divorce at the feet of the older generation."

That's a little severe, but parents might find a way to keep young children from smoking, to say nothing of drinking wife beating poisons. The ability of American parents to control their children is a danger to the next generation.

What is the meaning of a clear desk? The answer depends on the man sitting at the desk. John D. Rockefeller "wanted to see a man with his feet on a clear desk, busy thinking up new plans to make money for Standard Oil."

Mr. Rockefeller himself may have had an untidy desk. A man of his power certainly tried to do more than any one man could do.

Never make a hard and fast rule about your employe's desk, clear or littered, or about anything else. Hard and fast rules have caused many employers to lose good men.

It was the night before the first "World Series" game in New York and four thousand sat in line through the darkness waiting to get a good seat. That is more trouble than a majority of the 4000 would have taken to get a job, a better job, or to improve their minds.

TELLING LIFE STORY, HE DECLARES HE WAS FAR FROM SCENE OF CRIME

As calmly as if he were talking to old friends Stephen Hoppe, who has set a record for desperate escapes from New England jails, today presented his alibi to the jury in Superior Court at Dedham, where he is on trial for the murder of Alfred N. Hollis, Quincy policeman.

Stepping to the witness stand, Hoppe first recounted his thrilling escapes from the Maine and Vermont state prisons. He then declared that at the time of the murder in Quincy, at 4 U. S. MEN BOOKED FOR ZEPPELIN TRIP TO N. Y.

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND

Friedrichshafen, Oct. 5—The mysterious American who booked passage for America on the initial transatlantic flight of the German airliner Graf Zeppelin, but who requested that his name should not be mentioned, turns out to be William B. Leeds, young New York millionaire.

This was revealed when he telegraphed from Marseilles canceling his passage because business matters prevent his leaving Europe so soon. Leeds especially wishes to visit the International Aviation Exhibition in Berlin.

Four other Americans, including Frederick Gilfallen and Robert Reiner, the latter of Weehawken, N. J., have definitely engaged passage.

The work of clearing the ship for Lakehurst has started. Some changes inside the airship, providing better protection for the crew against the cold, are being made. Half of the crew, and several passengers, including Captain Rosendahl, who is representing the United States Navy on the flight, are down with colds as a result of the 24-hour flight during which the coast of England was touched. Capt. Rosendahl will be out of bed tomorrow.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, commanding the Graf Zeppelin, said he expected to have the airliner passed.

TWO NEW ARRESTS IN 'SOCIETY' DRUG EXPOSE

Two additional arrests on Commonwealth ave., bringing the total to eight, and the entry of narcotic agents into Lawrence, today featured the biggest and most spectacular drug roundup ever made in this section.

Guilty members of Boston and North Shore society trembled in the knowledge that their names were included in a list of drug addicts seized by federal agents and local police.

The series of raids uncovered a powerful syndicate that has been bringing in drugs from Montreal by way of New Hampshire and resulted in the seizure of a list of local distributors, and of drugs valued at $10,000. Further arrests are to follow.

The latest to be taken into custody are Dora Bruno and her husband Arthur, of Commonwealth ave., in whose apartment a morphine outfit was alleged to have been found concealed in a trunk.

ALEXANDER KNOCKED OFF THE MOUND

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 5—The Yankees made it two straight over the Cardinals by taking the second game of the World Series here today. The final score was: Yankees 9, Cardinals 3.

By ALAN J. GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor.

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—The Yankees, in a wild and wooly start to the second game of the World's Series, knocked their old Nemesis, Grover Cleveland Alexander, out of the box today in the third inning and piled up a lead of 3 to 3 over the Cardinals.

After permitting three runs in the first inning on Lou Gehrig's home run into the right field bleachers with Durst and Ruth on base, Alexander was shelled for another run in the second and knocked out of the box in the third after yielding three hits and two bases on balls.

The old veteran, a nemesis to the American Leaguers two years ago, was replaced by Clarence Mitchell, southpaw spitball hurler, who hit the first man to face him, and was touched for a single by BEn Paschal, replacement for Durst, before this stormy inning ended.

All told the Yankees collected four runs off the combined pitching of Alexander and Mitchel in this frame.

George Pipgras, young Yankee right-hander, was as wild as a hawk at the start, and with his support weakening behind him was lucky to escape with only three runs being scored by the cards.

These were put together in the second inning, when Harper walked on Pipgras' third pass. Wilson doubled, Maranville singled and Lazzeri threw wild on Alexander's grounder. Harper and Wilson tallied while this was taking place and Maranville scored when Douthit hit into a double play.

Babe Ruth started old Alex's downfall in the third with a single over second base. Gehrig walked and Meusel doubled to left, scoring the Babe. High threw out Lazzeri, but Bengough singled, scoring Gehrig and sending Alex to the showers.

Mitchell hit Pipgras on the leg, forcing in Meusel, and Paschal's single tallied Robertson, but Bengough was thrown out at the plate, Koenig, ninth man up, flew out to end the inning.

Pipgras settled down, regained control and held the Cardinals hitless in the fourth and fifth innings, striking out the slugging Jim Bottomley for the second time in the fifth after also fanning Frisch.

Alexander took up the battle against the Yankees where he left off in 1926, the year he beat them twice, stopped them in the deciding game of the series and held Babe Ruth hitless.

The Yankees, facing a right-handed pitcher, switched their lineup, putting Cedric Durst in center field in place of Ben Paschal, with Earle Combs still on the sidelines, and substituting Gene Robertson for Joe Dugan at third base.

Skies were overcast, a haze hung over the field, making it difficult to follow the flight of the ball, and the crowd was smaller than that for the opening day, which fell far below expectations.

It was estimated at game time that not more than 50,000 were in the park, big empty patches showing in the bleachers and upper tier of the grandstand.

Various explanations were offered for the failure of the fans to stage

2 HUB FLIERS CRASH AT AMESBURY AIRPORT

Amesbury, Oct. 5—Near-tragedy marked the dedicatory exercises of the local airport [illegible] an army biplane carrying two Boston aviators crashed from a height of 400 feet into a clump of trees adjoining the aviation field, completely wrecking the machine. Neither occupant was injured.

Lieut. Maurice Connell, pilot of the plane, and Sergt. John M. Neary had just taken off for their return trip to East Boston airport when hundreds of spectators on the field below were horrified to see the biplane nose-dive into the trees.

'Bossy' Gillis Calls — Jail Term of Two Months — Jut 'Another on the Chin'

—Boston Evening American Staff Photos

AT THE HEIGHT OF HIS POWER
Mayor "Bossy" Gillis is shown in his office in Newburyport Town Hall when he was telling the world how he was going to run his home town. He was sitting pretty then, and all went nicely until "Bossy" started to extend his business.

WHEN A MAYOR GOES TO JAIL
For the next two months "Bossy's" mail will be delivered to him at Salem jail. This photo shows the mayor in his cell. "Bossy" was a bit nervous when he heard Judge Browne pronounce sentence, but he soon shook off the gloomy mood.

HOPPE CALM AS HE TELLS STORY OF HIS LIFE

about 4 o'clock in the morning of Oct. 4, 1927, he was with his sweetheart, Helen Bradshaw, in Hartford, Ct.

For the first time since the trial began Hoppe was more than arm's length from armed guards as he left the prisoners' cage in the crowded Dedham courtroom and walked quickly to the witness box.

Deputy sheriffs who had been guarding him closely took up positions at points between the cage and the witness stand.

FATHER IN MAINE

Hoppe said he was born Dec. 30, 1898. His father lives in Maine. He said he lived in South Boston until 1916 when he moved to Braintree with his family. He left home December of that year and lived for a year or so in Roxbury. In January, 1918, he enlisted in Boston, spent three weeks at Newport Naval Training Station and then went aboard the U. S. S. Arkansas, serving in the North Sea. He was in the navy two years and ten months, being discharged as coxswain. While aboard ship he was gunpointer of a five-inch gun crew.

After the war he was a carpenter in South Boston and was married in 1921. He moved to Bangor, Me., in 1924. A baby girl was born to his wife.

"I got in trouble in 1924," he testified. "I was arrested in Boston for having stolen goods in my possession, and taken back to Skowhegan, Me. I pleaded nolo and was sentenced to 14 years at Thomaston State prison." (He stayed there three months, then escaped.)

"I cut the bars, went through the ventilator and dropped to the ground, 30 feet," he said, and denied he was injured.

"I went to New York city," he said, "to have the lines of my face changed to change my looks to escape capture."

He was next arrested in Vermont, in July, 1925, for breaking and entering. He had been shot in the left leg. He went to Rutland Hospital for four days and was then taken to Windsor Prison. He was in bed until November, 1925.

LEFT DUMMY IN CELL

"Then I escaped," he went on. "They gave me a crutch. Thanksgiving eve I made up a dummy and put it to bed, with a paper in front of it, put on the light and lit my pipe, putting it beside the dummy.

"I went into the yard and had my crutch with me. I sat down and waited for the bell signal for convicts to go in. As the bell rings the guards leave the wall. I went over the wall with the aid of a pole."

Q—Did you have any difficulty walking? A.—Well, my foot was sore.

He was captured in New Hampshire. In another attempt to escape he squeezed between the overshaft and body of a truck and tried to get out of the prison, but the guards caught him.

"I had been shot in the arm when captured in New Hampshire and was in the prison hospital for a time."

Q—Did you complain then about your leg? A.—Yes, I said I needed something to raise my foot.

Q—Did you need anything for your foot? A.—I did not. They made me a shoe an inch thicker than my other one.

He was put in the death house.

Q.—Was there an electric chair? A.—Yes.

Q.—How far were you from it? A.—Oh, about three feet.

Hoppe said he remained in the death house about two months and was not allowed in the yard with the other prisoners.

He said he broke through the wall of the cell, got into the corridor, broke through the corridor wall, got into the yard and went over the wall again.

Q.—What did you do with the shoe? A.—I left it there.

MEETS SWEETHEART

The defence was endeavoring to show there was nothing the matter with Hoppe's leg and that he only limped to fool prison guards. Government witnesses have testified that the Quincy policeman's murderer limped.

"I went to Chicago after escaping that time," said Hoppe. "I had my ears moved in a different direction and had my nose moved over."

Hoppe said that he arrived in Hartford, December 26, 1926, and met Helen Bradshaw in a gambling house. She is his sweetheart, who testified as a witness earlier in the trial. Hoppe said they lived together.

"In July I went across to Paris, spent one day there and started back the next day," testified the defendant.

Hoppe said that while he and Miss Bradshaw were living in an apartment on Hopkins st., Hartford, after his return from Europe, the police searched the apartment.

"I was sleeping in the living room and Miss Bradshaw was in the bedroom when the police came in," he said. "They said there was a complaint made that I was running dope. I told them they were mistaken.

"They searched everything, even looked under the carpet. They took some articles from my suitcase."

Hoppe said he bought and operated a grocery store. On the night of Oct. 3, he and Miss Bradshaw went to a theater. Next day he went riding in it in the afternoon and then to the Old Colony Inn, Meriden, with the girl and another friend.

He then brought his story to the murder day.

THIS IS HIS ALIBI.

"After I got out of bed on Monday, October 3, and bought meat for the dog and some bread, I spent the afternoon in the home of Mrs. Gray, a friend. Later I drove a friend of hers to a place an hour's drive away, getting back at 7:30.

"Mrs. Gray was not home when I got back and I went to Poli's Theater, leaving at 11 o'clock.

"Before going home I had a talk with a police officer in the company of Mrs. Bradshaw. We then drove to the Old Colony Inn in Meriden. About 2:35 in the morning I saw Miss Gray with a strange man. Miss Bradshaw and I drove back to Hartford, arriving at our apartment between 3:30 and 3:45 on the morning of October 4."

The murder was committed in Quincy about 4 o'clock that morning.

Hoppe said that shortly before 7 o'clock Frank Hickey, his grocery clerk, visited the apartment, as Hickey had previously testified.

SEE STORY ON PAGE 11

BOSSY SPURNS PRESS ON FIRST DAY IN JAIL

To add to his remorseful thoughts in durance vile at Salem jail, "Bossy" Gillis today discovered that Newburyport could transact its municipal business without the aid of its "bad boy" mayor.

Shortly after noon today Edward Bass, president of the Newburyport City Council, signed the municipal payroll under authority vested in him by the city charter and civic business, generally, hummed right along as if prisoner No. 48,806, confined in the Essex County bastile, had never existed.

In the meantime "Bossy," after a restless night on his plain prison cot and who began the day with a "publicity strike" against the press, was holding his first "reception" in the Salem institution.

Sartorially splendid and smiling broadly, the mayor welcomed his first visitor, Louis James, trusty henchman, business manager and superintendent of the ill-fated gasoline station which as "Bossy" away for two months. The meeting took place in the reception room of the jail and lasted an hour.

James carried with him the sum of $145, the amount "Bossy" owes Essex county for storing gasoline without a permit, as figured by Judge Nelson P. Brown in the total fine of $645 he imposed on the Newburyport mayor.

James handed the roll of bills over to "Bossy," who, in turn gave it to Deputy Sheriff Edward P. Carafferoni, thus squaring that account with Essex authorities. The remaining $400 is due to Newburyport for his having cut down several shade trees adjacent to the High st. gasoline station.

When James left the jail after his visit he informed waiting newspapermen that "Bossy" didn't mind the sentence, as he had done two months in the Salem institution before.

According to James, he was also to cheer the drooping spirits of the mayor with the news that if "Bossy" were to run for mayor again tomorrow he would be elected by even a greater majority than when he was swept into his present incumbency.

Back in Newburyport, however, public opinion was said not to be so friendly. Some of "Bossy's" opponents were bewailing the fact that he got off so easily and rumors of attempted impeachment of the red-haired executive spread propitiously about town.

In an interview at the State House today, Fire Marshal Neal asserted he would issue the gasoline permit to "Bossy" as soon as the sidewalk, which he ripped up, was replaced, and this announcement among the mayor's friends sent them scurrying hither and yon for volunteer pick and shovel squads to complete the job.

"The mayor is more cheerful than most prisoners on their first awakening behind the bars, but he isn't saying much," said the guard, who showed him the way to the dining hall at breakfast time, where No. 48,806 did away with a big bowlful of oatmeal with sugar and milk, three slices of bread, a saucer of prunes and a mug of coffee.

For the benefit of the folk down in Newburyport, the warden revealed that salt fish was the piece de resistance for their civic leader's noonday meal—salt fish with pork scraps, pickled beets, onions, and mashed potatoes, and this is further described as the most expensive meal the Salem institution provides.

The whole story may as well be told. "Bossy" will sup on fish hash, bread and cocoa.

The old grey uniform that is being revamped by the jail tailor to fit "Bossy," other available suits having proved unsuitable to his square frame, is not yet ready and "Bossy" spent the day in muffi, as they say in London.

There's no soundtrap at the Essex County jail, either, and so Mayor Gillis' hard labor will consist of sweeping, helping the cook or something like that.

Workman Killed in Fall

Martin Yevhart, 58, of Melandy ave., Waltham, while working on the roof at 120 Second st., Everett, today, fell to the ground and was killed. He was employed by the Home Roofing Co. of Malden.

WHEN "BOSSY" MADE A MISTAKE

Newburyport's "bad boy" mayor knows now he should have kept away from gasoline pump handles in his famous filling station dispute.

'BOSSY' NOT BIG WITH HIGH HATS, SAYS CURLEY

"Bossy" Gillis, mayor of Newburyport, owed his imprisonment to the fact that he was not "in" with the entrenched forces of privilege, ex-Mayor James M. Curley declared today at his noon rally in old Young's Hotel.

The speaker declared that, on the other hand, Mayor Thompson of Chicago, being "in," is excused of his errors and "rewarded for his infamy."

The meeting, which was attended by several thousand persons, one of a series being held at the expense of Curley to increase registration, was opened by former City Councillor Joseph McGrath. Other speakers were Edward J. Barry, Democratic nominee for attorney-general, and Dr. Joseph Santosuosso, nominee for secretary of state.

A feature of the proceedings was the presentation to ex-Mayor Curley of a brown derby, with the compliments of E. A. Filene.

5000 SEE AMESBURY'S AIRPORT INAUGURATED

Amesbury, Oct. 5—Five thousand aviation fans gathered here today to witness the dedication of the Amesbury airport and enjoy the first of a three-day celebration, featured by parachute jumping, "dead-stick" landing, speed races between commercial and army planes, bomb dropping and balloon bursting.

Harry Finnell, president of the Amesbury Airport Corporation, greeted the fliers.

Fined, Thought He Could Get Tick From the Court

John J. Hale of St. Botolph st. was amblin' out of municipal court today when officer "Eddie" Hayes halted him.

"Weren't you just fined 10 for parking overtime?" Hayes inquired.

"Sure," retorted Hale, "I'm the guy."

"Well, where is the money?

"Oh, I didn't know I had to pay it right away," Hale replied.

When Hale got back in the courtroom he discovered he had not the wherewithal. He was kept in the prisoners' pen, reading magazines, while waiting the arrival of money.

SMITH IS FACING PROBLEM OVER BORDER TOUR

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 5—Governor Smith's plans to invade the Southern border states, which have been occupying most of his attention since his return from the West, have provided some knotty problems in the matter of arrangements, and announcement of the definite itinerary may be delayed a few days.

The Governor, however, plans to leave Albany next week. As heretofore indicated, his itinerary will probably embrace Raleigh, N. C.; Chattanooga, Tenn.; Louisville, Ky.; Sedalia, Mo., and Chicago. Another engagement in Indiana or Ohio is still uncertain, with the possibility that he will not speak in either state. The tentative program is still subject to change.

For strategical reasons, the Democratic schedule makers are keeping their plans strictly to themselves until every date is final and definite. This, they say, has been necessitated by past experiences wherein considerable difficulty has been met in the renting of halls and making radio arrangements once it became known that Governor Smith was considering a certain location on a certain date. They do not publicly charge the Republicans with obstruction tactics, but they do so privately.

Neither is the Governor ready yet to announce what subjects he will deal with in his border line tour. He may deal with tariff and labor problems on the tour, and he may hit the "whispering campaign" again. Governor Smith is not yet through with that issue, for certain phases of it are almost daily cropping up in new forms, most of which reach him in one way or another.

Governor Smith has not been able to get in any golf since his return from the West. His 18 days' absence from the Capitol filled his desk with numerous state matters to dispose of. Wednesday he put on his golf clothes in expectation of getting in a round, but he couldn't make it, and yesterday he spent all of the day at his desk in the Capitol tied up on gubernatorial work.

The Democratic nominee will embark upon his second tour in a more satisfied frame of mind than he had when he faced the West. The Democratic situation in New York State was on his mind then. That now has been disposed of with the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for the governorship and a strong supporting slate. Consequently the Governor will start next week without one of the chief worries he carried with him on his western tour.

HEARING ON SANITATION OF SAVIN HILL BAY

A solution of conditions at Savin Hill bay, caused in large part by the construction of the Old Colony boulevard, was demanded by a large group of Dorchester residents today at a public hearing before a special commission at the State House.

The claim was made that the failure to build a culvert as stipulated, has resulted in the practical stoppage of the normal flow of the tide necessary from a sanitary standpoint.

ARTHUR E. NYE DIES AFTER STROKE IN OFFICE

Arthur E. Nye, 49, president and treasurer of the Marble Nye Company, 77 Pearl st., who was stricken in his office, died in Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital. The funeral will be conducted from the family residence, 31 Beaver st., Worcester, Sunday, at 3 p. m.

6 WOMEN HELD IN FAGIN RING ROUNDUP

Six Boston girls and women were arraigned in Newton and Middlesex Superior courts today as leaders in a "Fagin ring," in which many children are alleged to have been members and to have helped in the theft of $1,000,000 from stores in New England, New York and New Jersey.

Even while the girls were being arraigned police were making their 15th arrest in the corridor outside the Newton courtroom.

The newest captive is connected with the alleged ramifications of the "Fagin" band is Clio Grandolphi, 17, of Maverick st., East Boston.

He visited Newton court out of curiosity and was about to go into the courtroom and watch the arraignment of the others when detectives recognized him. He was arrested on an indictment warrant.

The three girls and one boy arraigned on charges of larceny and receiving stolen goods were Celia De Ross, 19; her sister Alphonsia, alias Katie DeRoss, 21, and their brother Joseph DeRoss, 29, all of Bremen st., East Boston, and Angie Macy Vallani, 18, of Cottage st., East Boston.

All excepting the Vallani girl were held in $1000 for hearing Oct. 15. Little Angie was arraigned in juvenile court.

The others are under arrest on indictment warrants and will be arraigned in Middlesex Superior court.

The operations of the "Fagin ring," police said today, have extended to the principal cities in New England, including Boston, Springfield, Providence and Worcester, and into New York and New Jersey. The ring, police said, has been in existence at least five years, and, according to investigators, is the most gigantic and nefarious organization of its kind in history of the East.

Some idea of the tremendous ramifications of the ring, according to detectives, is gleaned by their statements that more than $150,000 worth of merchandise has been stolen from Boston downtown department stores since last April alone.

Just what the total loss suffered by the Boston stores through the activities of the ring has been in the five years of its existence was not made known, but detectives said said the amount was staggering, and totals at least $1,000,000.

That children were brought up in the "Fagin Ring," and were forced into a life of crime, and that boys and girls no more than 13 and 15 years were taught to become accomplished thieves, are charges made by the police.

New York and New Jersey police, together with the authorities in the principal New England cities, are working in co-ordination with the police of Boston and Newton and, it was stated, wholesale arrests of alleged members of the ring are to be made.

The most pitiable of those arrested in Newton and charged with being a member of the alleged ring is little black-eyed Angie N. Valni, 13 years old, whose home is at 61 Cottage st., East Boston.

The second youngest girl under arrest is Celia De Ross, 16 years old, of 326 Bremen st., East Boston, whose mother, Mrs. Kate De Ross, also is under arrest, charged with being a member of the shoplifting band.

The oldest persons arrested are Carmina Sara, 60, of 170 Everett st., East Boston, and his wife, who is 58.

All of those under arrest at Newton headquarters gave their addresses in East Boston. All were ordered held in bonds of $10,000 each by Asst. Dist. Atty. Crafts of Middlesex county.

Another pathetic feature of the arrests, 12 of which were made in Newton, and two in East Boston, was when six children, two of them infants, were taken into custody by the police.

WIDOW IN $100,000 LOVE SUIT TERMED A FLIRT

The Wages of 9 Years of Crime

Leo Liakos, in jail at Chicago, wonders what he will get next—the chair or prison. His wife, held as an accomplice in hundreds of robberies, agrees with him that "crime doesn't pay." "I guess I've been a sap," he said.

STARTS "CAREER"
At 13, Liakos, dreaming of "easy money," got a pistol and set out to be a criminal.

HIS "REGULAR JOB"
By the age of 16 he had committed more than 1000 robberies, he told police. He "worked" eight hours a day.

FIRST SHOOTING
At 18, he shot his first victim in a holdup. He had then stolen 500 autos, he said.

HIS FIRST MURDER
By the time Leo was 21 he'd notched his gun. He killed a night watchman and shot two police.

Liakos was captured, and is now in jail. He also confessed to a murder in Indiana.

HIS PAY FOR IT
When arrested, Liakos had a greasy dollar-bill—and that's all!

WIDOW CALLED FLIRT IN BIG LOVE SUIT

A flirtation with her husband for three years is the basis of a suit for $100,000 brought in Suffolk Superior Court by Mrs. Rose M. Smith, 34-year-old Fitchburg woman, living at 31 Goddard st., Fitchburg, against Mrs. Marion S. Greenwood, an Otter River widow, said to be very wealthy.

Mrs. Smith charges alienation of the affections of her husband, Axel V. Smith, a former garage man of Fitchburg.

Mrs. Smith alleges that Mrs. Greenwood persuaded and enticed her husband to remain away from home for long periods of time. She has caused accounts of Mrs. Greenwood in the Gardner Savings Bank, the First National Bank of Gardner, the Worcester County Institution of Savings and the National Shawmut Bank of Boston to be trusteed.

Mrs. Smith was found surrounded by her four children, two boys and two girls, all under 10 years of age. Mrs. Smith stated that her husband and Mrs. Greenwood have been keeping up a flirtation for the last three years.

She said that Mrs. Greenwood and her husband started in the garage business in Gardner and that Mrs. Greenwood was to act as a saleslady for cars.

During the two years and a half that the business was running Mrs. Greenwood did not sell a car, she said, and that Mrs. Greenwood by used this method as a blind in order to be near her husband and to wean him away from her.

The garage business went on the rocks, Mrs. Smith said in addition and further stated that things went from bad to worse and that she was forced to leave Gardner and come to Fitchburg and that her husband still keeps seeing Mrs. Greenwood, who was the means of breaking up a very happy home.

Firemen of the Lexington and Arlington departments battled the flames and succeeded in confining them to the office.

The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Mildred Hoffman, of 5 Hibbard st., Lexington, who saw the reflection of flames a few doors away. She called the Lexington department, and an unidentified passerby sounded an Arlington alarm which brought firemen from that town.

Weatherford, Tex., Oct. 5 (AP)—Asserting that no one but a "wet" could have attended the national Democratic convention as a delegate, former Gov. William E. Sweet of Colorado, in a speech here, attacked the prohibition record of Gov. Smith. Mr. Sweet is a Democrat.

He also criticised the Democrats who will refuse to vote for Smith, but will go fishing election day to keep from voting for Hoover.

"You can't be neutral in this election and retain your manhood," he said.

SEIZE 6 TRYING TO BLOCK MILL STRIKE PEACE

New Bedford, Oct. 5—Six persons, two of them women, were arrested here today for passing out radical literature denouncing settlement of the mill strike expected tomorrow.

The circular accused labor leaders of selling out to the manufacturers, urges workers to continue the strike and charge mill owners with coercing labor leaders to recommend ending the strike.

Acceptance of the compromise 5 per cent reduction in wages by the strikers is hoped for as plans are making for a new vote on the proposal, tomorrow.

The original vote so aroused public opinion and protest by many of the workers, who claimed they did not have a chance to vote, that the Textile Council decided in favor of a new vote and unanimously recommended acceptance of the 5 per cent reduction offer with assurance of a 30-day notice of future reductions.

"Tay Pay" Is 80 Today; King Sends Greetings

London, Oct. 5 (AP)—King George today sent this message to T. P. O'Connor:

"On this, your 80th birthday, I offer you my heartiest congratulations with the hope that you may long continue to enjoy your active and useful life."

"Tay Pay," as the "Father of the House of Commons" is known, is enjoying better health today than he has for some months past.

He describes his creed as that of a realistic optimist—realistic in the sense that he believes every man can do something to relieve his sadness.

"The hope of so doing is the consolation of my old age," he said, "and the foundation of my hope that I may have some years more to do my share of this work."

Mr. O'Connor uses not smoke nor chew tobacco, but still clings to the old-fashioned habit of taking snuff.

JORDAN MARSH TO OPEN OWN 'AIRDROME'

The boys of Boston will read this and immediately make plans to attend the opening next Monday of the Jordan Marsh airdrome.

Since Lindberg fired the inspiration of the country's boyhood aviation has taken a permanent hold of the developing masculinity with the tenacity of a barnacle.

And now the Jordan Marsh Company, in accordance with its educational policy, is to foster one of the most comprehensive airplane displays ever attempted.

It is to be "Airplane Week" at Jordan's, starting next Monday morning and continuing throughout the week. Experts will talk on every phase of the making of an airplane.

The entire space of the second floor annex will be crowded with planes of domestic and imported manufacture, miniature of course, but complete mechanically and technically.

An actual sized "Travel Air" open cockpit plane, loaned to the store through the courtesy of the Boston Airport Corporation, will stand in the center of the floor with a runway leading to and from it. In its cockpit will sit John Stiles, airport pilot, whose only duty will be to answer questions, no matter how many or how complicated, that the boy quests of this educational enterprise may ask.

A 17 year-old New York boy whose Saturday demonstration talks to his confreres on aviation are a feature of a New York department store, has been loaned to Jordan Marsh Co. for next week. He is to have a booth and in languages intelligible to boys he will explain the building of planes as he sees it. That alone should make necessary traffic precautions in the store.

The Washington st. window of the store is to have a colorful display all next week of a plane with a moving propellor, white signs and arrows and other indications will blaze the trail for knowledge-seeking youngsters.

Jordan's airdrome is to house a real air meet. Its interest is to be educational and its spectators those of the reaping eyes and all-absorbing faces.

As for the girls—there is much in store for them later, for this is but one of many educational weeks to come.

Washington, Oct. 5 (AP)—William McAndrew, former superintendent of Chicago public schools, and the target of Mayor Thompson in his campaign against what he termed pro-British textbooks, has been appointed chairman of the resolutions committee of the department of superintendence of the National Education Association.

Dr. Frank D. Boynton, superintendent of schools of Ithaca, N. Y., and president of the department, made the announcement today. The committee, consisting of 10 other prominent educators, is charged with the responsibility of compiling the viewpoint of America's school administrators on the outstanding educational issues of the day.

COMMITTEE TURNS DOWN WILLEBRANDT INQUIRY

Washington, Oct. 5 (INS)—The House special campaign funds investigating committee will turn thumbs down upon any proposal to involve Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant Attorney-General and foe of Governor Al Smith, in an official inquiry, it was indicated as the committee met here today.

"We are no board of censors," said Representative Frederick E. Lehlbach (R.) of New Jersey, chairman of the committee. Representative Loring Black, a member of the committee, declared that financing of Mrs. Willebrandt's speaking tours was a proper subject for inquiry.

DEER ISLAND PRISONERS RAIDED MEDICINE CHEST FOR DOPE

G. O. P. DIDN'T DRAG IN RELIGION—LONGWORTH

Providence, R. I., Oct. 5 (AP)—"If the religious issue has been brought into this campaign it has not been by my party," Congressman Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, Republican speaker of the House, said in an address before the Rhode Island Republican Women's Club. "If it continues to be brought into the campaign it will not be by my party," the speaker added, "and can only be considered deplorable."

Congressman Longworth deplored the policy of the Democratic party in letting down the barriers against aliens who, he charged, "sought to remove the blue and the white from our flag and leave only thered." "I would like to take hold of every one of these people now in America and send them back to their native land," he said.

GOT PEPPED UP, SAYS DOCTOR

That morphine and heroin have been stolen from the medical chest at Deer Island and drugs smuggled to inmates by visitors and through the mail, was admitted by Dr. Bernard F. McGaffigan, medical officer of the harbor institution.

Dr. McGaffigan, testifying at the last public probe of the House of Correction, further admitted that he noticed traces of exhilaration on the part of addicts in the drug ward of the prison.

"So you are satisfied," said Sanford Bates, state commissioner of correction, "that these men, or some of them, are obtaining drugs during their residence on the island?" A.—Yes.

Q—From your observation of their physical symptoms? A—Yes.

NOT FROM HIS SUPPLY

Q—And you are also satisfied that it hasn't been obtained from your supply? A—Yes.

Q—And you didn't give anybody the right to have it or to administer it, except to keep it in your own personal possession? A—I keep it in person, yes.

Q—What occasions would you have to administer it? A—In case of emergency, hemorrhage, or violent pain. Not to a drug addict.

Q—To the best of your recollection how many of the 12 men in the drug section, or how many of the whole population have shown evidence of having received drugs down here in the last year? A—Of the present 127 I have no particular recollection of any of the present 12 that have shown any exhilaration.

Q—Well, during the last year how many have you noticed in that condition A—I am trying to place them. I should say two or three. This was some time ago.

Q—Do you remember their names? A—Yes, Buster Kirby. He's a Jewish fellow. He's the fellow who came from Cambridge for 18 months.

Q—Gately? A—No, a Jew. That brings another to my mind—Pat Shaughnessy.

Q—And Ascotillo? A—No, neither this trip nor the other trip.

Q—Gately? A—James Gately?

Q—Yes. A—No, I never noticed him.

Q—Was he in the group of addicts? A—No.

Q—Is he now? A—No.

Q—Do you think Ascotillo is a drug addict? A—I don't think so.

DIDN'T NOTICE IT

Q—Suppose he said so, would you change your opinion? A—It might have some weight with me, but I would shake him down. He might say he was an eater. I couldn't dispute that, but I haven't noticed anything.

Q—Have there been any colored fellows down here that have been suspected of it? A—No.

Q—Do you have any drugs on the island? A—Morphine?

Q—Yes. A—Yes.

Q—Where is it? A—In my room in my pocket—a small amount—a few hypodermic tablets and serum.

Q—Has that ever been stolen? A—No. Morphine has been stolen, but not recently. Heroin has been stolen, but not in the last four or five years.

Q—Now when you found a fellow that you suspected of having gotten drugs what did you do about it? A—Let him weather it out.

Q—I don't mean from a physical standpoint. I mean from a disciplinary standpoint. Did you tell the master? A—Yes.

Q—Did you try to find out where he got it? A—Yes.

Q.—Did you succeed in finding out? A—I didn't succeed, no.

Q—Have you any suspicion where it comes from? A—Yes. The mail —we watch that—packages, visits. We had an officer on the lookout for the passing of anything on a visit.

FOUND PACKAGE

Q—When was the last time that you remember that you saw a man whom you suspected had been getting drugs while he was on a sentence? A.—I think it is a year ago. Pat Shaughnessy. They had him trapped or suspected him of getting a supply. He had a visitor in the office. We had him watched. Immediately after the visit was over he ran out of the door and up the hill and threw something, and then we found the package in the bushes. A colored fellow who worked in the barn found it and turned it over.

Q.—There was an officer that came here this morning. He is in charge of the drug addict ward, and he said he noticed a man would have bright days. As he said they would brighten up. That must have been since the Shaughnessy days? A.—Oh, surely, surely.

Q—So there have been days in the last two months? A—I wouldn't be surprised, but there weren't any that showed anything, any marked symptoms.

Q—There wasn't any brought to your attention? A.—That's it.

Q—Who is up in the hospital in charge now? A.—Dutch Foley and Larry Quirk.

Q—Was there a dentist in charge for a while? A.—He wasn't in charge. He was a patient recovering from booze. He was working around there as an orderly but not doing any dental work unless—

Q.—Did you have an occasion once when a fellow tried to jump out of the window? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was his name? A.—Toland.

Q—What was he in the hospital for? A—D. T.'s—drunk.

Q—Was he in a violent condition? A.—Yes.

Q.—And there was an officer in charge? A.—No officer in charge.

Q—As a matter of fact he did go head-first out the window? A.—No, he didn't go.

Q.—Somebody restrained him? A.—Yes.

Q.—Another inmate? A.—Yes.

Q—And they pulled him back? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was done with him after that? A.—Put a restraining sheet on him—a strait-jacket.

NEW ENGLAND HOSPITAL ASKS $400,000

The New England Hospital for Women and Children, now appealing for $400,000 for a new children's building and an addition to the nurses' home, cared for nearly 4000 patients during the year just closed.

There has been a steady growth in the number of patients treated annually since the hospital opened its doors, 66 years ago, patients totalling over that period nearly 60,000.

Mrs. Augustus S. Nye, chairman of publicity, at a meeting of the committee said that "this continued increase made it absolutely necessary to begin operations on the new buildings without further delay. At least $400,000 will be required to carry out the building plans which the directors have decided are necessary. The committee in charge of the campaign are hopeful that the public will generously respond to their appeal."

As a general hospital for women and children, the New England Hospital serves particularly, Roxbury, Dorchester and Jamaica Plain. Patients are also received for special treatments from Greater Boston and from towns and cities in New England. In the maternity building 1203 births were registered in 1927-28. Twenty-two thousand New Englanders have been born there since 1862. If all these babies were brought together at one time, in one place, they would make a city as large as Roxbury.

The out patient department of the hospital has given 7716 treatments in 11 clinics. The patients treated represented 31 different countries. Medical attention was also given to the sick poor in their homes. Hospita. interns made nearly 1000 such visits during the year. More than 400 young women physicians have received training in the hospital as interns in the practical study of medicine.

The first woman in America to specialize in surgery received her training at the New England Hospital and an interne established the Chicago Women's Hospital. From the Nurses' Training School which antedates all others in this country, graduates have gone as far afield as China and India and have become heads of hospitals and training centers.

The charge made by the hospital for medical care and attention covers only a part of the actual cost for each patient. Many needy patients are given free treatment or are charged only a nominal fee. This hospital receives no State or city appropriation.

Additions to the citizens committee are: Mrs. Albert F. Bemis, Jeffrey R. Brackett, Eugene N. Foss, Miss Hannah M. Kimball, Edward Lanning, Orrin G. Wood.

MONEY AND TWO JOBS OFFERED FARM INMATE

There is still charity and compassion—and if William H. Tucker, 85-year-old unfortunate, is yet in need of aid when he leaves the State farm at Tewksbury, there will be sufficient forthcoming.

In the Boston Evening American, last Monday, there appeared the story of Tucker who, at his advanced age, was far down in luck, and in need even of food.

He had walked into the Hanover st. police station and had asked to be jailed as a vagrant that he might secure merely a bed and something to eat.

The kinks of the law apparently forbade arrest for a man away from the State for 20 years, but finally a loophole was discovered, and he was entered at Tewksbury.

Tucker found happiness and comfort at the farm—dreaded and shuddered at by most people.

Today the police reported that they have received two offers of jobs for Tucker, one in a Boston bank.

The other job, offered through Police Supt. Michael H. Crowley, was described as "easy," but the name of the man offering was not given and the type of work was not described.

There were also donations of money sent to the police, one of them a $10 bill given by a motorist friend to Officer Clarence V. Hyde of Traffic 20 and forwarded by him to police headquarters.

Tucker is out of luck but there are friends in the Hub to aid him.

Slugged When He Asks Bartender for Milk

Worcester, Oct. 5—Edward Migneault, 24, of 97 Madison st., walked into a near-beer garden on Green st. and asked for a glass of milk.

When he recovered, the proprietor hit Migneault over the head with a club, according to a report made by the victim to the police authorities.

Now an investigation is being made to establish whether milk or moonshine was responsible for the attack.

WIFE SLAYER TO APPEAL

Springfield, Oct. 5—A stay of execution, pending an appeal to the Supreme court, has been granted to Morris Levine of 612 Summer st., Holyoke, found guilty of slaying his wife, Rose, 51, by stabbing.

A jury in superior court here announced the verdict after 70 minutes consideration of the case, and Judge Harold F. Williams then ordered the clerk of court to pronounce the statutory sentence of life in state prison.

The State maintained that Levine killed his wife and then cut his own throat, while the defendant set up as a defense that his wife attacked him and then cut her throat.

Polish Workers Strike

Lods, Poland, Oct. 5 — Textile workers began striking here for a 20 per cent increase in wages. The government is trying to conciliate the dispute and has asked the mill owners to submit by October 8 a statement of what concessions they would make to the workers.

WIFE SUES HER FATHER-IN-LAW FOR $10,000

Suit for $10,000 was filed in Norfolk Superior Court by Mrs. Ina C. Withington of Canton against her father-in-law, Alonzo E. Withington, the basis for the suit being alleged alienation of the affections of Mrs. Withington's husband.

She claims that on Sept. 1, 1927, her father-in-law caused his son to become intoxicated from drinking liquor on his premises. Although she appealed to him many times, he did not pay any attention to her.

She also claims that her father-in-law permitted her husband to drink from a bottle of liquor on his premises while he was intoxicated and that the father-in-law, for purposes of injuring her, caused her husband to remain away from home, depriving her of his aid and society and destroyed his affection for her. Her husband is still living apart from her.

BURGLAR SENT TO STATE PRISON FOR 15 YEARS

Expert in looting fashionable apartments, Frederick W. Tuma, 32, pleaded guilty in superior criminal court to larceny charges and was sentenced to from five to 10 years in state prison.

Following his arrest by Officers McGuire and Hamlet of the Brighton police, Tuma was taken to Cambridge and there received a three to five-year prison sentence for burglarizing the Cambridge apartments of one of Gov. Fuller's secretaries, so the five-to-10-year term yesterday gives Tuma a total of 10 to 15 years.

ALIEN RUNNERS ROB AND KILL PASSENGERS

Jacksonville, Fla., Oct. 5.—Bold piracy almost at the back door of Florida, where brutality and horror make some of the tales of the Barbary coast appear tame in comparison, is an established practice in these modern days, according to United States immigration authorities of the 10th district here.

Immigration officials relate instance after instance where aliens paid a stipulated price to smugglers who promised them safe entrance to these shores, only to be robbed of all their worldly possessions and thrown into shark-infested waters while they slept.

Because of their strategic location near one of the largest bases of alien smuggling — the West Indies — Florida's government men hear many startling tales from those they rescue or capture.

In one instance, and authorities believe this a common practice, a cargo of aliens had each paid a set sum for transportation from Cuba. The first night out they were overpowered, robbed of their remaining possessions, tied in sacks and dumped into the sea.

In another case, the captain and crew of a smuggling ship had a cargo of aliens which outnumbered the crew. The immigrants demanded that they be put ashore, and were promised a landing at dawn. During the night, the skipper set fire to his ship and he and his crew abandoned it, using all the lifeboats of the craft. Their cargo was left to perish in the flames.

However, a favoring tide and wind swung the burning craft to a remote end of the same island with the ship's crew and alert immigration officers took into custody the entire lot of aliens and seamen.

HOODOO DAY FOR THIS DRIVER

When a car driven by Edward F Walsh, 28, of Sixth st., Cambridge, according to police, struck another machine on the Revere Beach parkway, Everett, and kept on going, it was Walsh's luck to have a metropolitan policeman, on his way home, see the accident.

The policeman, Donald J. McFarlane of the Revere metropolitan station, gave chase in his own car and made the arrest of Walsh when the latter's car crashed into a tree on the Fellsway, Medford, a mile from the place where the first crash occurred.

Walsh was thrown to the ground but uninjured, although the car, a hired one, was badly damaged. He is charged with driving while under the influence of liquor.

Pirates' Treasure Trove Hunted on Spanish Main

San Francisco, Oct. 3 (INS)—Doubloons, pieces of eight, Cocos Island, the treasure trove of the Spanish main, formed a renewed topic of conversation on the waterfront today as Captain Elmar Peterson of the fruit steamer Limon brought back the tale of another expedition bent on revealing the secrets of the tropics.

Peterson, bringing his ship from Port Limon, Costa Rica, said a group of adventure-seeking treasure hunters were equipping a craft with Cocos island as their objective.

"Cocos," according to maritime tradition, is the supposed hiding place of an immense treasure cargo taken from Lima, Peru, a couple of centuries ago on the schooner Mary Dyer, wrecked there," Captain Peterson said.

3 SEEKING FIN. COM. JOB

Three candidates are in the field for the $5,000 a year job as chairman of the Finance Commission to succeed Charles L. Carr, who has been appointed associate justice of the Municipal court by Gov. Fuller.

For more than four years, Judge Joseph A. Sheehan of the Municipal court has been serving on the commission without salary, and his name was popularly used in political circles as a worthy successor to the chairmanship.

Then former Fire Commissioner John R. Murphy, who served as chairman of the Finance Commission from 1913 to 1919, was considered as available for another term.

The third man suggested was Richard M. Walsh of Dorchester, who served as assistant corporation counsel under Judge Joseph Corbett of the land court.

SERIES GIVES WAY TO LINDY

New York, Oct. 3 (INS)—Which is the bigger attraction, the World's Series or Col. Charles A. Lindbergh?

Radio station WOR decided this interesting question in favor of the transatlantic flier today. The station is broadcasting the second game of the series, but at 2:30, no matter whether the listeners heard the crack of Babe Ruth's bat, the Yankee Stadium was to be cut out, so that Lindbergh's speech before the National Safety Council could be put on the air.

After the colonel has finished, the baseball classic was to be picked up again.

BIG PAYMENTS MADE TO HALT BOULDER DAM

By M. L. RAMSAY

Washington, Oct. 5—The law firm of Mechem and Vellarott was paid $100 a day for the services of former Governor Merritt C. Mechem, of New Mexico, in reporting to the power lobby on efforts of western governors to reach agreement on Boulder Dam, it has been disclosed.

Checks and vouchers put into the Federal Trade Commission record in the investigation of power propaganda showed payments of $1,350 for thirteen and a half days attendance upon the conference, held in Denver, from Aug. 18 to Sept. 2, 1927.

Mechem's name was signed, as "representing New Mexico" to a resolution adopted at the conference urging delay on the Boulder Dam project. Following disclosure last spring that the firm had been paid a total of $5,239, partly in connection with the conference, Mechem declared he had been openly a representative of private interests.

Judge Robert E. Healy, the commission's chief counsel, also introduced a check for $371.69, made out to the firm for a "three day trip to Denver, at $100 per day," and certain expenses, dated Jan. 6, 1928. Another conference on the dam was held in Denver during the month preceding this payment.

Mrs. John D. Sherman of Estes Park, Col., has received approximately $14,000 from the National Electric Light association for writing mountain articles, mostly written while she was president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, it was shown.

A warning to H. R. Parks, field engineer of the Missouri rural electrification project, to "step softly" about promising electricity to the farmers was disclosed in a new batch of letters from the files of J. B. Sheridan, Missouri propagandist.

Sheridan wrote that he doubted the power companies' desire "to go into the rural electrification work on an extensive scale," and pointed to a "danger" that the farmers would become too eager and set up their own distribution systems.

S. P. C. C. FETE BIG EVENT, BETTY ALDEN

Invitation Cards for Event October 17 Sent Out to Smart Set Leaders; Mrs. George Saltonstall West Heads Reception Line.

CARDS OF INVITATION FOR THE S. P. C. C.'S 50TH ANNIVERSARY DINNER ARE coming to the desks of various important personages here and there. October 17 shines luminously in the Society's immediate future as the evening when its past, a fine half-century of good works, is to be fittingly celebrated. The Society engages the Hotel Statler's enormous ballroom and intends to do its birthday anniversary glowingly. There will be many guests of honor and a receiving line and the Society's leaders doing the honors. Mrs. George Saltonstall West, diminutive and pretty, will head the line and directors will be disposed along it. There is a list sufficiently long to fill several receiving lines, and sufficiently imposing to decorate the most ceremonial occasion.

THE NAME OF MRS. GASPAR G BACON COMMENCES THE LIST CHRONOLOGICALly and that of Miss Dorothy Winthrop ends it. It also contains such cognomens as M Graeme Haughton, James J. Minot, Jr., Mrs. George S. West, Mrs. Bernard C. Weld, Mrs. Joseph Seabury, Mrs. Henry Lyman, Mrs. L. Carteret Fenno, Miss Elizabeth S. Beal, Albert F Bigelow, Charles K. Cummings, Mrs. Frederick S. Moseley, Mrs. George S. Mumford, Robert W. Knowles, W. Rodman Peabody, H. Bradlee Fenno, Mrs. John W. Hallowell, Mrs. Henry W. Harris, Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, Philip L. Spaulding, John H. Sturgis, Matthew Luce and Joseph S. Bigelow.

THE STEAMSHIP FRANCE SAILS TONIGHT AT MIDNIGHT IN THE MODERN MANNER OF ocean greyhounds. And takes out an interesting company, including some Bostonians. The Baron and Baroness J. de Lustrac sail for France with their daughters, Mlle. Marguerite de Lustrac and Mlle. Marie de Lustrac. Winters in Paris for this family follow summers at York Beach with regularity. At the latter place they call their home "Stonewalls" and keep it filled with guests throughout the season. Miss Elizabeth Amory of Boston and Wilmington, Del., also is a passenger on the France on the current outward trip, and Mrs. George S. C. Badger, Boston and Cohasset, is aboard with her young daughter, Miss Virginia.

SIX WEEKS IN FRANCE AND ENGLAND WILL VERY PLEASANTLY ACCOUNT FOR THE autumn of Mrs. Joseph W. Woods and her sister, Mrs. W. F. A. Stride. These two young matrons sailed for the other side a few days ago and do not return this way until the Thanksgiving season is well upon us and snow is about to fly. Mr. Woods is making out very well with a long season at the shore, principally at the Pollard establishment out on Eastern Point. Mrs. A. Wilder Pollard, mater to the two matrons now gone a-traveling, also stands in the maternal relation to Mrs. Alvin Bortwell and to Mrs. Jonathan Raymond. So there is a brood of grandchildren to be attended. Mrs. Pollard may be said to be probably Boston's handsomest grandmere. Her costumes are distinctly pleasing to the eye and she wears them with great aplomb.

HOME AFTER TAKING COURSE ABROAD
Miss Katharine Cunningham Gray is back from study in Rome, with a mezzo soprano voice, beautifully trained, in anticipation of a concert career. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James C. Gray of Beacon st.

YESTERDAY AT THE Brockton Fair Samuel Shaw of Brookline drove the famous "Seaton Pippin" in the class for harness pairs. And the world-renowned mare had as her harness partner "Harmony." And both horses are proud possessions of the Paul Moore stables. The North Ring at the show was a lively spot when six harness pairs swung through their paces. "Seaton Pippin" has been given the blues in so many shows they have become second nature with her. And as an extreme high honor she ranks as probably the finest harness horse in the world today. At Brockton of course she brought delight to the eye of your real horse lover. A marvelous specimen of horseflesh, so say they all. And of course Mr. Shaw is quite elated, naturally, at having given her the first "blue" she ever received in competition.

AN ATTRACTIVE YOUNG rider at the Show, trim and trig in her habits, is Miss Frances Farnsworth. She goes in for saddle horses, and has shown her brown mare, Cynthia MacDonald, in several classes. The Farnsworths belong in New York winters and have a summer place up in Vermont, and appear annually at the big show in Brockton. And as a rule they put up at the Hotel Touraine, just as they are doing this autumn. Miss Miriam Winslow's string of well-groomed and shining horses and Miss Winslow's smart habits serve two purposes. The former catch the eyes of the judges and the latter of the feminine contingent. And of the masculine set as well.

THE BENEFIT SEASON IS about to arrive. And great is the skirmishing on the part of committees and sponsors that the countless tickets to this and that affair may be disposed of. Musically and artistically inclined Boston would greatly deplore the faux pas of a "Morning" with Heifetz or Chaliapin when gilded chairs in the Statler ballroom remained unoccupied. Or when only a slim patter of hands greets Angna Enters' appearance on an "Afternoon" in that same enormous auditorium. A small army of promoters is even now busily on the scene disposing of tickets. Sponsor lists and patronage lists, made up long since, repeat ad infinitum the names of those who have a pet charity to be financially assisted. And even in advance of that activity there was much jockeying for place. Obtaining a favorable date is more than half the battle, so think the promotors.

THE MARVEL OF IT IS that so many promoters and so many high and mighty patronesses may be found in the upper stratas willing to undergo the "benefit" ordeal. And ordeal it is. Six mornings have been taken for the School of Occupational Therapy and a brilliant array of artists engaged. Talitha Cumi Home accounts for three afternoons, and artists who are sure-fire attractions will appear. The Boston Children's Friend Society invades a comparatively new field in the benefit line and announces six lectures on interior decorating, the mornings scattered through November, December and January, and holding forth in the Algonquin Club. If one desires expert information on units and periods and what is ultra in decorating the home, here is opportunity to acquire it. The list is really endless, and liberal-handed ones will have every opportunity to do the benefit thing up brown.

FEAR HUDSON BAY SHIP LOST

Edmonton, Alta., Oct. 5 (AP)—Fears were felt here today for the safety of the 30 passengers and crew of the Hudson Bay Company's steamer Distributor, unreported since she left Ahlavik Sept. 12, bound down the Mackenzie River for Fort Smith. She is eight days' overdue at the latter port.

This late in the year low water and ice are a menace to shipping and company officials fear the ship has either been sunk or stranded somewhere along the reaches of the river, far from civilization. She was making her last trip of the year.

The wireless station at Fort Simpson, which might have some word of the missing steamer, is disconnected at the present time, changing location, and will be unable to send messages for two or three more days, they said.

Among passengers on the Distributor are Bishop Gliddes, new head of the Mackenzie diocese of the Church of England, and Archdeacon Fleming. She carries a crew of about 20 men.

SOCIETY LEADER TO OPEN HOME FOR SMITH

To promote the candidacy of Governor Smith, Mrs. John F. Moors, Boston society leader and sister of the Rev. George Lyman Paine, executive secretary of the Boston Federation of Churches, will open her home at 35 Mt. Vernon st. next Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 for a meeting of independent voters.

Mrs. Moors is co-operating with the Democratic State committee and she has accepted a place on the Women's Democratic Advisory committee.

In accepting the latter office, Mrs. Moors said:

"It is a privilege to vote and work for Governor Smith. He is a real man who understands and cares for the problems and interests of the people. He has shown his courses and ability to secure legislation for their benefit whether it be along humanitarian lines or in preserving the water powers of the state."

The Republican State Committee, in answer to a hurry call from Chairman Francis Prescott, made late today to select a presidential elector from the 14th Congressional District.

The election was made necessary because of the withdrawal of Angelo P. Bissesero of Quincy, Republican, after his name had been ratified by the Republican convention last Saturday, announced he would vote for Smith, causing no end of embarrassment.

Precautions are being taken to make sure the elector named today will be a Hoover man.

Under the auspices of the Norfolk County Division of the Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts a Republican rally and tea will be held at the estate of Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird of Walpole tomorrow afternoon. Mrs. Joseph H. Bobbie is in charge.

The Women's Republican Club of Massachusetts will conduct a "whirlwind tour" of Massachusetts by automobile beginning Oct. 15 and continuing through the 27th. The principal cities and towns will be visited. Speakers will be Mrs. Nelson Albert, Merritt of Connecticut, Miss Mary Stewart of Washington, Miss Alice Mackey here, Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Mrs. Frederick W. Hollis, and Mrs. Susan W. RUSSIA WILDLY GREETS NOBILE RESCUE SHIP

Leningrad, Oct. 5 (U.N.S.)—The famous Soviet ice breaker, "Krassin," triumphantly returned here today after fourteen weeks spent in the Arctic, during which it rescued seven marooned members of the crew of the ill-fated dirigible Italia.

Not since the first days of the Russian revolution, when the Czarist battleship Aurora, manned by a crew which had murdered its officers and hoisted the red flag, steamed up the Neva River and bombarded the winter palace of the Czar, has any vessel been a cynosure such a welcome as was given the Krassin today.

Twelve guns boomed out in salute as the ship passed the Kronstadt fortress. Then an official welcoming party boarded the ice-breaker. After they had congratulated Capt. Samoylovitch, Aviator Chukovsky, who piloted the Italian explorer Zappi and Mariano, and others of the crew, the Krassin proceeded here, escorted by six cruisers.

Thousands lined the docks here as the ship approached. Factory sirens and whistles of rivercraft mingled with the wild cheers of the welcoming throngs as the Krassin moored.

Another ovation greeted a party of government officials and diplomatic attaches of the Swedish legation and Scandinavian embassy who then greeted the valiant crew while a band played the "Internationale."

MILLIONAIRE'S SON JAILED AS BURGLAR

Salinas, Cal., Oct. 5—A 19-year-old youth whom police claim is John Illingsworth, former football star at Pomona College and son of William H. Illingsworth, Fullerton millionaire, was in jail here charged with burglary.

Police accused young Illingsworth confessed to stealing clothing and jewelry at approximately $1,000 from the Pebble Beach estate of John Bruner of Los Angeles.

CLEVELAND MAIL FLIER DOWN IN CONNECTICUT

Branford, Ct., Oct. 5 (AP)—Apparently having lost his bearings while flying in a mail plane from Hadley Field, N. J., to Cleveland, Jack Webster, the pilot, was forced down by heavy fog and darkness early today on a farm in the Cherry Hill section. Webster escaped injury, but the undercarriage and wing of the plane were damaged.

He hovered over the town for an hour and sighted the field with the aid of flare torches. The consignment of 26 bags of mail was brought to New Haven and shipped to New York by rail. Webster will remain here until he receives further orders from his superiors.

HOOVER LEADING STRAW VOTE IN CHICAGO

By CHARLES N. WHEELER
Noted Political Analyst

Chicago, Oct. 5—Herbert Hoover, for the first time, since the early days of the campaign takes the lead in Chicago in the Hearst straw vote.

Democratic leaders have sent the tidings to Raskob that Governor Smith is going to carry Chicago by at least 178,000 and the State by not less than 50,000.

The totals today, covering the entire 10 wards in the city, are Hoover, 27,609; Coolidge, 27,814.

Smith, 27,539; Davis, 20,485

Hoover lead, 50.

In attempting to find a reason for this showing of Hoover in Chicago proper, two major developments are considered—the April primary and the first day of registration last Saturday.

In April the Democrats had no contests and in many wards their moral support was thrown to Republican friends who were seeking re-election.

The strongest political alliance in the city's history was on one side of the battle line in the Republican contest—the city administration, the police department, the state's attorney's office and all its far-flung influence, the sheriff, the county board and county police and the practically solid influence of the state administration.

ALLIANCE DEFEATED

It was the first time in half a century at least that the entire administrative machinery of city and county were solidly arrayed on one side of the fence. The prognosticators universally agreed that this alliance would sweep the primary by at least 200,000.

In the first day of registration last week all Chicago records went by the board. The total exceeded 400,000, and in one residential ward the women registrants outnumber the men. Ward after ward rolled up a registration in excess of 30,000.

The figures of four years ago may or may not be worth much this trip, but that large registration was followed by a landslide in Chicago and Cook County for Coolidge.

HOOVER IN LEAD

Coolidge, for instance, carried Chicago with a plurality of 380,476 over Davis, and a majority over both Davis and La Follette of 389,505. He carried Cook County by a plurality of 483,832, and by a majority of 366,833 over both Davis and La Follette.

A significant aspect of the straw vote today is that Hoover is receiving just about the vote that was polled by Coolidge. The figures are: Hoover, 27,609; Coolidge, 27,814. On the other hand Governor Smith is showing a big gain over the Davis vote. These figures are: Smith, 27,539; Davis, 20,485, a gain for Smith of a little more than 7000 votes.

HOOVER READY FOR INVASION OF SOUTH

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 5—Facing his big bid for electoral votes from states below the Mason-Dixon line, Herbert Hoover today was prepared for an invasion of the happy valley of Tennessee for a speech to the solid South.

The Republican nominee will leave late tonight on a special train to keep his speaking engagement at Elizabethton, Tenn., tomorrow afternoon. En route he will stop at Bristol, Va., and Childers, Tenn., and after his address he will visit the Old Soldiers' Home at Johnson City, Tenn.

The trip, his first of the campaign into any southern state, will mark the Republican party's greatest effort to stir up southern enthusiasm for Hoover. Party leaders from Florida to Texas have been urged to attend the Elizabethton gathering and Hoover will meet the Republican chieftains at a banquet in Johnson City tomorrow night.

The nominee's speech will be devoted to a wide range of topics, but its chief note undoubtedly will be an appeal to the South to lay aside political prejudices and vote the Republican ticket this year.

His trip was arranged, in fact, only after southern Republicans declared a personal appearance would enable him to break into the electoral vote of the solid South. If he should succeed in this, it would be the first time since before the Civil War that a Republican presidential nominee has carried a State of the old Confederacy.

Hoover, in visiting the happy valley of Tennessee, will follow a trail blazed by some of the heroic figures of American history.

It lies within a territory once claimed by De Soto for Spain and at another time by La Salle for France. The valley was a famous trade channel between Indian tribes of the North and their redskin brothers of the South.

Daniel Boone visited the section with his scouts. Andrew Jackson practiced law in the town of Elizabethton, Davy Crockett, the "hero of the Alamo," was born nearby.

In 1772, four years before the Declaration of Independence, the settlers along "the Boone trail" organized the first free government in America. They agreed to the first constitution ever adopted by American citizens and they were the first to rule themselves upon the western continent.

Their government was called "Washington Territory" and on the same site, a little later, the State of "Franklin" was formed, which subsequently became Tennessee.

Into these historic surroundings Hoover will carry his bid for the southern electoral vote.

BROCKTON FAIR PAYS HONOR TO GOV. FULLER

For his last time as chief executive of the state, Governor Fuller was honored today at the Brockton Fair on the annual Governor's Day.

The Governor's party left the State House an hour before noon and motored to Brockton, spending practically all the afternoon at the fair grounds.

In the party were Lieut Gov Frank G. Allen, Atty Gen. Joseph E. Warner, Charles L. Burrill, Commissioner Harvey L. Boulter, Chester I. Campbell, Esther M. Andrews, Pehr G. Holmes, Mark M. Built and Eugene H. Fraser, William L. Reed secretary of the executive council, Herman A. Macdonald, secretary of the governor, ex-Mayor Roger Keith of Brockton and Walter Rapp, chairman of the Governor's Day committee.

The Governor arrived in time to see "Indian Girl," owned by Sidney Collins of Hyde Park, win the $100 trotting race over a 2-mile course.

He witnessed also the auto races and other program features and made a brief address in which he said:

"This is my farewell attendance at the Brockton Fair as Governor of the Commonwealth. I have deeply appreciated the cordial good will and hospitality of the officials of the fair and I offer a toast to the president, Fred F. Field, and to Walter Rapp, chairman of the Governor's Day committee, who we are delighted to have restored to us in good health."

MAYOR IS SORRY HE SUSPECTED JEWS IN KILLING

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Mayor W. Gilbert Hawes of Massena, N. Y., has expressed his "deep and sincere" regret over the question of a rabbi concerning a "ritual murder" rumor. The hasty letter was made public by Dr. Stephen S. Wise, president of the American Jewish Congress, after a hearing on the case in Albany ordered by Governor Smith. Louis Marshall, president of the American Jewish committee, had demanded that Mayor Hawes either apologize or resign his office.

The incident developed over the questioning at police headquarters in Massena of Rabbi Berel Brannes after the disappearance of ten-year-old Barbara Griffith. The child later was found in a nearby woods unharmed.

The rabbi was questioned by Corp. McCann of the state police, whose apology Dr. Wise also made public. Marshall charged that Mayor Hawes had "arranged" for the questioning.

SEES BOON TO HOOVER IN SMITH TOUR

The Al Smith Special, million-dollar campaign train of the Middle West, today was termed a "good circus that is proving a boon to the candidacy of Herbert Hoover," by the Rev. Dr. William L. Stidger, new department head of B. U. The clergyman.

Dr Stidger arrived yesterday from Kansas City, Mo., where he was pastor of the Linwood Avenue Methodist Church. He is known for his five years as a Dearborn friend of Henry Ford and author of "Henry

REV. DR. WILLIAM L. STIDGER

Ford, the Man and His Motives."

"The great Mid-Western trip has been reduced to an absurdity," he said, speaking of his observations among farmers and cattlemen who thronged to the train stops.

SMITH A "GOOD SPORT"

"They go to see him to be sure. They all agree he is a good sport with the brown derby and East Side twang.

"Cattle men and farmers in the section through which the Smith train passed, told me they actually felt a feeling of animosity as the New York governor attempted to pour forth solutions of their farm troubles.

"Many of them are college men and certainly know the situation better than the Democratic editorials from the sidewalks of New York.

"Others told me they resented the manner in which Smith hissed into each city and town, whatever the case may be, and in his East Side way, attempt to tell those men politics to the problem they have studied for years.

"In my opinion, the trip is proving a boon to the Hoover forces because thousands of voters are attracted by the ballyhoo and then turn away convinced that the Smith Middle West campaign is reduced to an absurdity."

SERIES OF SERMONS

Dr. Stidger in addition to his new duties as head of the department of preaching and pastoral work of Boston University, will give Sunday morning sermons at the Copley Square Methodist Church.

Next Sunday he will preach on Governor Smith and William Jennings Bryan, a comparison and contrast.

Similar sermons will be delivered by him on succeeding Sundays on Woodrow Wilson and Al Smith, Theodore Roosevelt and Al Smith, both products of New York; Calvin Coolidge and Al Smith a comparison and contrast, and the Sunday before the November election he will preach on the qualities of Governor Smith and Herbert Hoover.

Dr Stidger has a graduation promise of 16 years with his present trip to Boston. He is a graduate of Brown University, Providence, R. I., of 1912, in which year he delighted in telling his classmates that he intended making a trip to Boston via San Francisco, when he received his sheepskin. Yesterday's arrival fulfilled the promise.

WORKMAN, INJURED IN 25-FOOT FALL, DIES

Attleboro, Oct 5—James E. Farrar 58, a painter, of 42 Pleasant ave., died at Sturdy Memorial Hospital from injuries suffered Monday when he and two other workmen were hurled 25 feet to the ground when a staging attached to the side of the James E. Blake Co. jewelry factory dropped.

The fall was due to the snapping off of a steel hook which was hooked over the edge of the roof of the three-story building. Farris suffered internal injuries.

Ship Lands 160

With 143 passengers, 147 of whom came from Canadian ports, and the rest from England, the Furness line steamship Nova Scotia, Capt. Samuel J. Furneaux docked at Hoosac pier, Charlestown, coming from Liverpool, St. Johns, Nfld., and Halifax, N. S.

Livestock Crash Stages Rodeo at Army Post

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—"Ho, hum!" sighed a sentry on Governor's Island this morning. "Maybe this is the day that something'll happen."

A couple of hours later the following events had happened in rapid succession:

A livestock float, carrying 1000 sheep and 200 cattle for New York dinner tables, collided with the steam trawler Osprey near the battery.

The captain of the tug Clara Morse, which had the float in tow, decided that Governor's Island was the safest place.

When the float had been warped alongside the government dock, the men on the float released the livestock, which went scampering, bellowing and bleating all over Uncle Sam's lake greens yard.

Sentries sounded alarms, bugles bugled and infantrymen became cattlemen and sheepherders on short notice. It took quite a while to round up the frightened animals and put them aboard a new float, but Governor's Island agreed that the morning had passed quickly.

Stately Music for New Radio Series

MUSIC to which the grandmothers of the present generation danced at the stately balls of the last century will be featured by the Interwoven Entertainers in a new series of programs which will be inaugurated through WBZ and the NBC System this evening at 8 o'clock.

Mazurkas, gavottes, minuets, reels and polkas will be played by an orchestra reminiscent of those that played for elaborate affairs in dignified mansions before the Civil War. Selections to be played will be taken from the works of such composers as Mendelssohn, Ganne, Maugnet, Nevin and Paderewski. From time to time the DeWitt collection of early examples of the Virginia Reel will be drawn upon for material.

"BLOSSOM TIME"

THE BEAUTIFUL musical score of "Blossom Time," the popular operetta of Schubert music, will live again in the Cities Service Hour to be broadcast over WEEI at 8 o'clock tonight. Sam Herman will be featured in two saxophone-xylophone solos, "Ripples" by Lewis, and "Sparklets" by Claude MacArthur, long famous as an orchestrator and composer of modern music. Other high spots of the program are a pair of Spanish selections, "La Medit Noche," a serenade, and "Scandilla" by Sloane. "The Tin Soldier," by Cesar Cui, and popular selections will be sung by the Cities Service Cavaliers.

BIBLICAL OPERA

THE UNITED OPERA COMPANY'S performance of Saint Saens' "Samson and Delilah" will be given at 10 o'clock tonight through WNAC and stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System. This opera was to have been presented by the United Opera company several weeks ago, but was postponed on account of political broadcasting, which had the air that evening. The story of the opera follows closely the Biblical narrative of the powerful Samson, who was shorn of his locks by the deceitful Delilah. The United Opera company will, as is their custom, sing the opera in English.

PARIS BY NIGHT

THE ABBAYE DE THELEME, famous Paris night club, will be visited by Manon and Peaches and Bill and Jacques during the "Evenings in Paris," broadcast at 9 tonight through WEEI. King Edward the Seventh in his day, knew Abbeye de Theleme well. Then, the waiters there wore monks' cassocks. Manuel dined here with Gaby many times after she had finished her evening's work at the Capucines Theater. Today, Alfonso of Spain may be seen here on his visits to Paris. In the language of Broadway, it is the haunt of the swell and the grand duke.

QUAKERS SING PIANO PIECE

"STEPPIN' on the Ivories, by McLaughlin, usually heard as a piano solo, will be presented in a novelty arrangement for piano and voices by the Armstrong Quakers during the program to be broadcast through WBZ this evening at 9:30. "Life Is a Twosome," the opening number, will be sung by a chorus whose members are Dorothy Miller Junet Hall, Elsie Thayer, Mary Hoopes Randolph Weyant, Victor Hall, Norman Le Moyne and A. L. McAdams. Other numbers by the chorus, with orchestral accompaniment, include Rapsodie "Someday, Somewhere," Fraulein "L'Amour, Toujours l'Amour" and "In a Little Love Nest," with a quartet of girls and the concluding selection on the program, "Chloe." NABS FLEEING PRISONER IN HUB CHASE

Alleged to be one of the cleverest automobile thieves in the country, Austin Cannon, 23, who recently escaped from the Plymouth County Jail, was recaptured when a Boston police sergeant nabbed him after a wild chase through several city squares.

Cannon was picked up in New York city a few days ago and Inspector George Chase of the Brockton police department and Deputy Sheriff John Condon of the Plymouth county jail, went there to bring him back. They reached Boston and intended to entrain immediately for Plymouth last evening.

Film Man's Sight Is Menaced as Rabbit Crashes Windshield

Cedar City, Utah, Oct. 5 (AP)—Raoul Walsh, prominent Hollywood motion picture director, suffered serious injury to one eye and cuts about the face when a jackrabbit, blinded by headlight glare, leaped through the windshield of the Walsh automobile.

Mrs. Walsh, who was driving the machine from Zion National Park to Cedar City, was not injured. Walsh will be transferred to a Salt Lake City hospital today.

SEEK TO INDICT ASSAILANT IN DURIS CASE

Dist. Atty. William J. Foley went before a Suffolk County Grand Jury today to seek an indictment, charging assault with intent to kill, against a Cambridge man in the shooting of Thomas J. Duris, proprietor of the New Weymouth House at Nantasket.

The shooting occurred in Room 509 of the Hotel Brewster Monday.

This action by the district attorney resulted from the failure of the man to give himself up as he had agreed through his counsel in a telephone call two nights ago.

Meanwhile, Duris at the City hospital suffering three bullet wounds in his body, is resting comfortably. Atty. William W. Hick, counsel for Duris' alleged assailant, notified Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle, in charge of the investigation surrounding the shooting affray, that his client preferred waiting to see what action the grand jury would take in his case rather than surrender, as previously decided upon.

4 AMERICANS FOR OCEAN TRIP IN ZEPPELIN

fuelled and provisioned Monday when a short and final test would be made.

The ship will then be clear for Tuesday, and the start for Lakehurst will be made as soon as weather over the ocean is favorable. No decision will be made as to the selection of the northern or southern course until the last moment.

With a flight of 1206 miles in which many varieties of weather were encountered from gales to intense cold, the Graf Zeppelin and Commodore Eckener have aroused enthusiasm and interest from England to Holland as well as throughout Germany.

The 34-hour duration run, on which I was a passenger, was the last long flight of Germany's air liner before her transatlantic flight.

The more than a score of passengers were chilled to the bone from the long hours in the biting cold in an air which at times slightly frosted the windows, especially when the ship went up 7000 feet to blow off gas. All, however, express the greatest enthusiasm as the performance of the airship.

DODGED BAD SPOTS

Dr. Eckener showed the superiority of the Zeppelin over airplanes in navigating the air in bad weather, making use of weather reports for dodging bad spots, and setting his course by the compass when there was no visibility. Motors were repaired without interfering with the flight, and the ship was allowed to idle over the North Sea near the Danish border because he did not want to get back to Germany before the people were up.

The highest speed reached on the trip was approximately 85 miles per hour, while at times bullfeising winds held the ship as low as 45 miles per hour.

When we we cruised over Lowestoft and Yarmouth and ran along the English coast, we gave the English their first view of a Zeppelin since the war. Then we headed out over the North Sea, getting back again to the Dutch coast at Terschelling Island.

Dr. Eckener had to choose between a visit to London or Berlin, since he wanted to get back to Friedrichshafen before dark. This he could not do and visit both cities. Moreover he preferred that his first visit to London should be in daylight, so he decided to go to Berlin.

TRIUMPHAL PARADE

The storm we ran into north of Nuremburg caused Dr. Eckener to run around the edge of it by going down the Rhine to Holland and thence to England. Before daybreak we were at Flensburg on the Danish border, Eckener's birthplace. As we came into Germany town after town turned on the fullest illumination as the airship approached, even in those early hours.

The airliner continued on at low cruising speed to Bremen. Then we were at Hamburg and later over Berlin. The brilliant sunshine, looking from above the capital, made the city looked like an excited ant hill. The streets were filled with people, and many were on the roofs.

Dr. Eckener dropped a floral greeting to President Von Hindenburg

Eckener Wants to Reach U. S. by Way of Boston

Friedrichshagen, Germany, Oct. 5 (AP)—The flight of the German dirigible Graf Zeppelin to the United States has now been set for anytime after October 9 instead of on Sunday as had been originally planned.

"It depends entirely on wind and weather what route we take," said Dr. Hugo Eckener today. "Naturally I would like best to choose the northern route which is the shortest one across and would even put up with bad weather over land.

"In that case we would fly by way of Holland, Middle England, Northern Ireland, and then across the Atlantic to Newfoundland, thence by way of Boston to New York.

"Unfortunately there is usually bad weather along this route so that we may have to pick a different course, which would be most likely toward the south.

"From the moment we reach the European coast we will need from 48 to 50 hours for the actual crossing to the west, while the whole trip in the easterly direction with the wind in our back should not take more than two days. We have arranged for no special weather service, but will rely on the ordinary one for ocean vessels."

Dr. Eckener urged that the public should not worry if nothing should be heard from the Graf Zeppelin for many hours. He expects to send out his location to Friedrichshafen from time to time, but once the Gulf Stream has been reached wirelessing probably will be difficult.

"After the fortieth hour don't worry if you do not hear from us for a long time," he said. "The Zeppelin is built so well that even if two motors should fail to function and three compartments of the gas bags lose their contents, we could still navigate."

The doctor added that during the first part of the journey the dirigible would rely on the Norddeich and Koenigswusterhausen German radio stations and thereafter on the American coastal stations and the Washington Weather Bureau.

HE FIGHTS VACCINATION WITH HUNGER STRIKE

Berlin, Oct. 5 (INS)—Rather than permit his children to be vaccinated, the Danish merchant Bjoerner, of Copenhagen, went to jail, where he immediately started a hunger strike. His family joined him in the hunger strike and vowed to eat nothing till he was released.

Boer Vet Gets 'Clear Receipt' for Boots of Wounded Foe

Sydney, N. S., Oct. 5 (AP)—Col. W. R. Collins, Boer delegate to the empire parliamentary conference, had a clear claim today to the boots he took from S. W. Muncey, Canadian scout, when he wounded Muncey during the Boer war 27 years ago.

Col. Collins, in a speech before the Canadian club at Moncton, recently told of the incident and said he had been carrying a "heavy conscience" ever since.

Yesterday Col. Collins received a telegram from Muncey's mother at Charlottetown, giving him a blessing as a clear receipt for her son's boots.

DIES OF HURTS IN FOOTBALL

Monongahela, Pa., Oct. 5 (AP)—Injuries to his spine sustained last Sunday while playing football proved fatal today to William C. Young, 29, of Monongahela.

Young intercepted a forward pass, but was thrown to the ground. When the pile uprose he was unconscious. He was rushed to the hospital with both legs paralyzed, but did not regain consciousness.

ILEANA BECOMES FIRST RUMAN WOMAN NAVIGATOR

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 5 (AP)—Princess Ileana today became the first qualified woman navigator in the history of Rumania.

The Princess, who toured the United States with her mother, Queen Marie, and her brother, Prince Nicolas, was successful in oral, written and practical examinations for navy navigators. The Admiralty has already brevetted her as "first helmsman of the fleet."

INSURANCE BAN ALARMS STUDENTS

Students in high school and the nearby colleges today flew into a tirade against the edict of a big insurance company which has announced that students are not "good risks" for automobile liability insurance and therefore has tabooed them.

The edict, instead of being received placidly by the students created alarm, when it was figured out that should the ruling spread to other big companies there is a danger that automobiles operated by students may be tied up after January 1, for want of someone to provide compulsory automobile insurance as demanded by the State.

The insurance company which has banned students from having their automobiles insured is the London & Lancashire Indemnity Co., with offices in Hartford and Boston. A notice of the company to its Massachusetts agents read:

"We find it necessary to advise our agents that automobiles owned by students and automobiles operated principally by students are not acceptable to this company for automobile liability insurance, and you are hereby requested to refrain from signing registration certificates or in any way accepting entrance on such risks.

"This applies to all students, male and female—whether at high school, college or graduate school—both new business and renewals.

"The experience on such cars has been so unprofitable that the above underwriting rule is necessary."

Ban Pocket Lighters and Matches in Big Factory

Leominster, Oct. 5—Pocket lighters are the targets of a new set of safety rules adopted by the Du Pont Viscoloid Co. of Leominster, one of the largest novelty manufacturing plants in New England.

The new rules are that matches and pocket lighters are forbidden inside the plant. This rule applies to the 1900 hands and affects everybody from the lowest laborer to the manager. If any employe has a pocket lighter or matches with him to light his cigar, pipe or cigarette, it must leave the lighter and matches at the gate before he enters to go to work.

The company, which has recently adopted a policy of carrying its own insurance, is firm in this requirement.

MORE RING ARRESTS TODAY

They were arrested by a detail of raiding officers headed by Federal Narcotic Agent Joseph P. J. Flynn with Sergts. Robert Caverly and William McKenzie of the police narcotic squad, who were in charge of the drug drive.

The woman was alone in the apartment when the officers entered and at first denied being an addict. Later she begged the officers to arrest her and take her to the police station, declaring her husband to be in New York, police said.

The police however, had been watching a place Bruno frequented, and in a short time he was taken into custody.

NEW DRIVE IN LAWRENCE

The federal agents then hurried to Lawrence, where they expected to make further arrests designed to stop the flow of narcotics into this section. At least three other wholesale peddlers are being sought, as a result of information obtained by the Federal men in following a shipment of drugs from Montreal to New Hampshire.

In the list of peddlers was an unexpected windfall to the officers, containing as it did not only names but amounts disposed of in respective territories.

One of the most amazing revelations of the roundup was the list of addicts containing the names, addresses and telephone numbers of many prominent persons, including one leading Boston specialist in medicine.

According to the authorities the list lays bare for the first time the actual extent to which drug addiction has spread in this city, its ramifications extending through every class of society.

APARTMENTS RAIDED

Already under arrest are: James Hacker 32, of Columbia rd., Dorchester; John Goodman, 31, of 55th st., New York, and Benjamin Marko of Clinton st., New York. The women are: Evelyn Cameron and Grace William, who were seized in a house on Appleton st., South End, and Eva McGann, 35, who claimed an address at Warrenton st., where she was arrested.

During the day the police visited more than two dozen apartments in the city and the outskirts. In one house, that of Hacker, at Columbia rd., Dorchester, the police said that the greatest part of their drug seizure was found at this address.

According to Federal Agent Flynn, it was located in a coal bin and with the drugs was a complete smoking set for their use.

While the police spent hours with the federal agents in an effort to "break through" on the ring without much success, they finally caught on the trail they were following when they located the Cameron and Williams women in an Appleton st. apartment.

Following their arrests the other raids and the seizures came in quick succession. Eva McGann, who had been under surveillance for some time, opened her door at the knock of the officers.

They entered and while they were talking a man in a room nearby bolted into the hall and escaped. He is one of the men most wanted by the police and federal men and directions for his capture were sent out in urgent appeals from headquarters.

GET LIST OF SELLERS

The police say they found 300 grains of narcotics in her possession.

Hacker was arrested in an apartment on Huntington ave., where, it was alleged, he was delivering a quantity of the drugs. While two officers pinned him against a wall two others ran to the street and took Goodman and Marko into custody. They were sitting in an automobile carrying New York registration plates.

The trio was taken to headquarters and each booked for the possession of drugs with intent to sell.

During the raids men headed by Sergeant Caverly and Federal Agent Flynn were watching tenements, hotel rooms and apartment suites in almost every section of the city.

They were ordered not to strike until the police had obtained the lists of sellers which they felt would be found in the initial raids.

They admitted they had the sellers' list and the addicts' list but refused to say where it had been obtained, although they admitted that the papers would bring about many more arrests.

BISHOP CANNON CALLS GOV. SMITH "TRICKSTER"

Memphis, Tenn., Oct. 5 (AP)—Gov. Smith was termed a "political trickster" for seeking election under a dry banner in the South and as a "wet" in the East last night by Bishop James M. Cannon, Jr., who delivered one of a series of addresses in opposition to the Democratic nominee.

Referring to a charge of bigotry which he said had been made against him by John J. Raskob, national Democratic chairman, the speaker said:

"No wet Roman Catholic Knight of St. Gregory and chamberlain of the Pope can make that charge against me with impunity."

The speaker said he had not sought to raise the religious question, but added that a person will find there is dynamite in such charges as were made against him.

LEGION VANGUARD TAKES UP INTERNAL POLITICS

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 5 (AP)—Internal politics engaged the advance guard of the American Legion delegates here today for the national convention, which roosts Oct. 8 for the five-day annual session.

Candidates for national commander already in the field are Roy Hoffman, Oklahoma City; Gen. Albert L. Cox, Raleigh, N. C.; and O. L. Bodenhamer, Eldorado, Ark. Others suggested include Ralph T. O'Neil, Yoka, Kans., vice commander; John E. Ewing, Shreveport, La., and Monroe Johnson, South Carolina.

FORMER TAUNTON DOCTOR DIES IN CONNECTICUT

Cotuit, Oct. 5 (AP)—Dr. S. F. Haskins, a practising physician in Cotuit for 35 years, died at Cape Cod Hospital in Hyannis. Dr. Haskins was a graduate of Dartmouth College and University of Michigan. He had practiced in Taunton and Orange before finally settling in Cotuit.

The Why and How

London, Oct. 5—George Lansbury, veteran labor M. P., explains in an autobiography why he once kept his hat on when showing the present Queen and Princess Mary about a school. He would have caught cold had he uncovered.

ROOSEVELT "DRAFTED" TO PUSH SMITH POLICIES

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt had denied he was "dragooned" by Gov. Smith into accepting the Democratic nomination for governor of New York. In a statement telephoned from Warm Springs, Ga., to the Democratic national headquarters, Mr. Roosevelt said: "I am amazed to read that efforts are being made to make it appear that I have been stampeded by Governor Smith to further his own election. I was not dragooned into running by the governor. I was drafted because all of the party leaders when they assembled insisted that my often expressed belief in the policies of Gov. Smith made my nomination the best assurance to the voters that these policies would be continued."

ROOSEVELT HITS AT BIGOT "LITERATURE"

Columbus, Ga., Oct. 5 (AP)—Resuming his speaking tour on behalf of the Democratic nominees, Franklin D. Roosevelt said the main issue in the campaign was one of the most important in national life, and that a handful of unthinking citizens have failed to live up to the country's principles. "No sane person would have the Republican convention in session for the eighth consecutive day," he said, "but thousands of dollars for printing and distribution of the literature and speech, the Republican candidates stand to benefit to some extent by the immoral, baited vote."

23 MACEDONIANS ARE HANGED IN FIERCE FEUD

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 5 (AP)—Bitter feuds among opposing factions of the Macedonian revolutionists are becoming fiercer and assassinations are reported daily. The latest news, more sanguinary than ever, was received from Kostendil, stating that 23 followers of the recently assassinated Mitro Iadji leader, then, Alex Protogeroff, including Ilen Ban-

DIVES TO DEATH OFF HUB BOAT

Leaving a note in his cabin, D. J. Cirkot, manager of the Grassy Sprain Golf Club, Yonkers, N. Y., leaped to his death in the sea, it was discovered today when the New York to Boston boat, New York, docked.

The note, addressed to Jacob Cirkot, 30 Crescent st., Anaonia, Ct., said:

"Dear Family: Please forgive me. I will at least spare you funeral expenses. Somehow or other, 'Asleep in the Deep' was my favorite tune. God bless you and keep you all. (Signed) Don."

Cirkot was assigned cabin 15 when he came aboard the boat last night. He was not missed until the boat docked here and he failed to turn in his key.

His cabin door was forced and the note found.

Will Any Man Love Girl With a Past?

CHAPTER 17

ALL day the rain fell, in a soft gray drizzle. All day Joan sat at her small table in the workroom idling with a pencil in her hand, and a block of paper before her.

"Now you let that Gillespie piece alone," Maisie had warned her. "A girl that has dyed hair and two husbands at twenty-one ain't your kind, and you keep away from her."

And tonight they were "stepping out." The expression was Ruth's. Ruth was in high spirits. She kept running into the workroom to talk about it.

"I told them seven, at the St. Francis. I don't want them calling at my jay hotel. Or could we have them call at Mrs. Kimmer's? . . . Joan, I'm crazy to know what you think of him. He's . . . wonderful . . . of course I've been in love before, but not like this . . . Joan, if you try to get him away from me, you natural born vamp, you, I'll kill you . . . My Lord, the fool I was to ask you . . . listen, You'll be nice to Rollo, won't you? He's a sweet thing, really, and leave my boy for me . . . I think I'll sneak out and get a wave, my last permanent was kind of fuzzy . . . and a facial . . .

They all went downstairs laughing. Joan and Ruth and young Rollo Keyes. Outside a motor purred, the driver held a big umbrella for them. Rollo, a serious young man in immaculate evening clothes, took the seat beside Joan. Ruth chattered on his other side. They were on their way . . . "stepping out!"

The raindrops fell, the street lights twinkled, every one a star, a star in a black velvet night. And this was Joan, Joan Hastings, who used to wear blue serge with patches on the elbows. Joan, in Francine's most successful evening gown, cut so low it showed the dimpled smoothness of her shoulders, curved daringly to her waist in back. Joan, walking into a big hotel, to dance and dine at night!

The joke of it—Joan—doing this! She laughed at Rollo's witticisms, not hearing a word he said. And she thought of Curtis, Curtis whose lips had brushed hers, Curtis who was coming back. Other gowns from Francine's . . . other nights like this with Curtis. . . . Her voice came high as a child's, "Ruth . . isn't it fun?"

In the glare of the hotel lobby Ruth's face showed thin and strained. "Rollo, are you sure we were to meet him here? I don't see him. Why didn't you bring him to the apartment in the first place? This is no way to meet . . . if we have to wait here all night . . ."

A man was coming toward them, a tall man with crisp, black hair and an insolent, boyish swing to his shoulders.

Bill. It was Bill. Ruthie's lover was Bill . . . Ruthie introducing him—to her . . .

He took her hand, "Miss Hastings and I have met before."

Bill saying that, . . . that they had met before . . . she and Bill . . .

They were all talking now, all talking and laughing together, moving across the hall to the dining room, Joan with the others.

Bill, in love with Ruth . . . so soon . . . so soon . . .

"I ought to care, awfully," she thought, "but I don't—I don't care a bit. Only I hope—I hope I'm not going to be sick. I feel — so queer."

The orchestra played, the lights glowed, Waiters brought courses which she pretended to eat. "Dance?" Rollo asked, when Ruth and Bill were gone away.

"I'd rather not . . . tired . . ."

"All right, suits me, lets eat. But that Will um Martin out there hitting it up with my girl friend couldn't sit still if you tied him. Some stepper that boy. Good old Bill. So you knew Bill, eh? Before he came South I suppose. Well, well"—

Then Rollo and Ruth drifted away, and only she and Bill were left. She looked down at her hands. There was nothing to say

"Dance?"

She stood up. Why not? It

DROPS $150,000 GEMS IN SEA?

Rio Janeiro, Oct. 5 (AP)—Whether jewels with an estimated value of $150,000 lie in Rio Janeiro harbor or are cached safely ashore is a question bothering customs authorities.

Joaquim Maranda, a harbor policeman, is under arrest on a charge of attempting to smuggle the gems into Brazil from an Italian liner. He maintains the package was dropped overboard from a launch while he was returning from the liner.

Customs officials believe that with the arrest they are on the trail of huge smuggling operations in previous stones which may have been going on for years with connivance of harbor police.

DOG'S BARK SAVES FIVE FROM BURNING HOME

The dog, belonging to Mrs. Jeanette Manning, awoke its mistress. She saw flames coming from the house occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Repine and summoned the fire department. She then awoke the family who fled in their sleeping apparel.

THIRD IN LOVES OF RICH ARTIST

—International Newsreel Photo

Mary Corday, beautiful dancer of the Lido and other European centers, has just been chosen by Ben Ali Haggin of New York to succeed Bonnie Glass, former Roxbury girl, as his wife No. 3. The marriage in a small Connecticut town became known only when the couple returned to New York after the honeymoon.

BEN ALI HAGIN WEDS DANCER MARY CORDAY

New York, Oct. 5—Ben Ali Haggin, divorced in Mexico by the former Bonnie Glass, 20, dancer, a former Roxbury, Mass., girl, immediately married another exponent of terpsichore, Mary Corday, it became known today.

The marriage of the wealthy artist and the beautiful dancer at the Lido and other European centers took place in Connecticut, friends of Haggin revealed. He had known her since she was a child.

It was Haggin's third marriage, his first wife, Faith Robinson, now being Mrs. Joseph E. Corrigan, and Miss Corday's first. She, it is understood, is a friend of Haggin's daughter, Mrs. Louis M. Gouraud.

Haggin said his marriage developed from a romance begun three years ago when he met Miss Corday again at a reception in Venice and later painted her portrait. Miss Corday returned to the country a few weeks ago from Florence, where she attended the Miss Penrose School.

She is an amateur dancer and frequently appeared at charity affairs. He is a grandson of James E. Haggin, wealthy mine owner and turf-

'I'M INNOCENT!' SAYS MAE WEST

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—Pleas of not guilty were made in general sessions court today by counsel for Mae West, author of the police-raided play, "Pleasure Man," the producer, stage manager and 56 members of the cast. All had been indicted charged with giving an improper performance.

Counsel for Miss West requested a week in which to withdraw the plea or make motions, and Judge Koenig consented. Bail of $1000 was fixed for Miss West, for Carl Reed, the producer, and Charles Davenport, stage manager. Bail for the others was set at $500 each.

Before the arraignment Judge Koenig announced that any photographer who took a picture during the session would be held in contempt.

SENATOR CURTIS SPENDS DAY AT RACE TRACK

Chicago, Oct. 5—Senator Charles Curtis, former jockey and the Republican Vice-Presidential nominee, spent the afternoon at Lincoln Fields race track.

In honor of the occasion, the track officials named the fifth event the Senator Charles Curtis purse. Frequently members of his party called on the Senator for "tips." He usually had a choice in each race, but his only tip of the afternoon was "keep your money in your pocket."

He was about the only one who followed this tip, and his friends declared if he had been a gambler he would have been a little richer by backing his selections.

PROBE DEATH OF PATIENT IN BATHTUB

Taunton, Oct. 5—An investigation has been launched here to determine how Robert Berry, 16 years old, of Hanover, was drowned in a bath tub in the Taunton State Hospital while six other patients and a male nurse were present in the room at the time.

Berry's death has been ascribed by Medical Examiner Charles Attwood to "accidental drowning," but an investigation to learn if there had been any negligence was under way.

Berry was committed to the hospital August 31 of this year from the Boston Psychopathic Hospital. He was an "excitable patient," according to the hospital records.

At the hospital it was declared the male nurse in the bathroom where the drowning occurred was not near Berry at the time, having passed to another end of the bathroom testing the temperature of the water being used by other patients. He discovered Berry had slipped down into the tub when he returned, it was reported to the authorities here. Attempts to revive him proved futile.

MAYOR BAUER FORBIDS ALL POLITICAL PARADES

Orders have been issued to the Lynn police by Mayor Bauer of that city to stop all parades which may be held by any political candidate or party either before or after the election. He gave as his reason for the order that traffic conditions were such in the city that lame would occur and people be inconvenienced were such parades held. He also forbids political speeches and rallies in the streets and on the sidewalks for the same reason.

CALL TRUCE IN CHURCH WAR AT LOWELL

A truce has been called in the church war in Lowell, which involves more than 300 Greeks in the Orthodox Greek community.

Both factions in the war remained peaceful today, declaring there will be no further outbreaks until the courts have had a chance to settle the dispute which has been raging between the Greek Orthodox Council and members of what is known as the bishop's party in the church.

The war broke out because of a dispute over the legality of the election of officers of the Greek Orthodox Temple on Lewis st., Lowell. It reached a pitch when 'so young men, armed with sledge hammers, broke down the door of the temple, which was followed by a raid on the place by police who seized a number of old-fashioned muskets and revolvers of heavy calibre.

The factions are seeking to gain permanent possession of the Holy Trinity Church. The latest action has been taken by Atty. Edward J. Tierney and John T. Farley, both of Lowell, in obtaining a writ of replevin.

Until the interference by police, the temple has been closely guarded by persons who are said to be members of the bishop's party. When police smashed their way into the Temple they found that men had been on guard day and night inside the temple, using cots placed near the main and side entrances to sleep on. The guards had been fed with food sent in by friends, it was declared.

The two men who broke down a door of the Temple, before police went there, are alleged to have been Christopher Jeongas and Thomas Papaston.

GIRL QUIZZED IN OBREGON'S SUICIDE TRY

Mexico City, Oct. 5 — Senorita Flora Vega, described as a ravishing beauty, is to be questioned regarding the attempt at suicide made by Humberto Obregon, son of the late Gen. Alvaro Obregon, following an evening spent at the home of the senorita.

Authorities here learned that young Obregon had been planning to wed the senorita and his attempt on his life, within a few minutes after he had bade his fiancee goodby, has caused considerable mystery.

Young Obregon, who is 21, shot himself in the breast while he stood at the steps of the home of Senor Don Torrebianca, son-in-law of President Calles' private secretary. It was to have been the night that the first report was that young Obregon had shot himself accidentally, but later police questioned him and the story that he had tried to take his own life followed.

Miss Fances told the authorities that several friends had been present at her home when Obregon visited her and after which he shot himself.

Mrs. W. H. Vanderbilt compares leading cigarettes and selects OLD GOLD

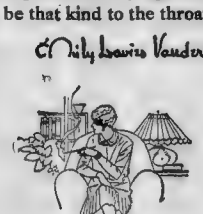
MRS. W. H. VANDERBILT is one of the most beautiful and talented young women in New York and Newport Society.

"I did not think I could enjoy smoking on the morning I took the blindfold test, for I had contracted quite a sore throat.

"Thus the fact that I chose OLD GOLD from the other three leading brands . . . and enjoyed smoking it . . . is signal proof of its mild and smooth quality.

"I am grateful to any cigarette that can be that kind to the throat."

Dorothy Lewis Vanderbilt



MRS. VANDERBILT was asked to smoke each of the four leading brands, clearing her taste with coffee between smokes. Only one question was asked: "Which one do you like best?"

Made from the heart-leaves of the tobacco plant

Why you can pick them . . . even in the dark

In this scientific cigarette test a blindfolded smoker tries four leading brands. The only question asked is, "Which one do you like best?"

Why should one cigarette win time after time? What gives OLD GOLDS their captivating charm? The answer is very simple: heart-leaf tobacco. No heavy, coarse top leaves of the tobacco plant . . . no withered ground leaves. Only the cool and fragrant heart-leaves are good enough for OLD GOLD.

It's sheer quality that gives OLD GOLDS their honey-like smoothness. When smoked "incognito" . . . is it any wonder that they win, even in the dark?

SUES FOR GATE TO FACTORY

Claiming that the Metropolitan District Commission harmed his business by fencing him off from access to his doughnut factory, Fred T. Gleason, proprietor of a doughnut shop at 741 Old Colony Boulevard, Dorchester, seeks to have a driveway made through a wire fence by order of the Supreme Court.

Gleason asserts that his transient retail trade had been stopped by the building of a wire fence, four feet high which effects a barrier between Old Colony parkway and his one-story brick doughnut factory.

The fence was erected a few days ago and no loophole was left to permit entrance to the shop, known as the Puritan Doughnut Co. A day or two later signes were placed by the park police forbidding automobile parking in front of the doughnut shop. All customers have had to visit the shop by a passageway through a lumberyard on Freeport st., Gleason asserts.

BEACON MOTOR OIL
NEW LIGHT on OIL PROBLEMS
Today's high-power, high-speed, high-compression engines present difficult problems in proper lubrication. The correct oil must be free-flowing — for clearances are small. It must have ample body—because stresses and pressures are high. It must have extreme heat-resistance — for both firing and frictional temperatures are far beyond those of even a few years ago. And it must not congeal at zero, because winter driving is getting to be almost as common as summer.
If you want to be sure that these conflicting conditions are completely fulfilled in your motor oil — call at any one of hundreds of Colonial Stations and thousands of Colonial dealers in New England and New York, and you'll find the right oil for every type of motor and every make of car.

SWAMI WARNS 'LIVE WIRES' OF OVEREATING

The aspirant to personal magnetism must never ot'eat, Swami Yogananda, of India, metaphysician, said during his lecture at Symphony Hall.

Swami Yogananda.

"He who has to carry a food-laden, heavy body," he said, "cannot be attentive enough to radiate his magnetism.

"Some people are walking automatons. Some are like dead, decayed wood filled with worthlessness some act like refrigerators. They congeal all your smiles and joys when you meet them. But some are live-wires. They instill in you health, prosperity, consciousness or wisdom when you meet them.

"A magnet is known by the quality of its metal, power of conductivity, the range and the magnitude of the force passing through it. So each man can be a human magnet. To make himself a true medium for magnetism to work through, man must keep his nerves in proper condition by an abundance of fruits, plain diet, fasting, regular habits of life.

"An important thing in acquiring magnetism is to keep the will developing its power by letting it constantly wrestle with difficult problems. The magnetic person must be wide-awake, but not restless or slow to act. He must be poised, deep in thought, quick to act and calm always. He must be wide-awake wearing a genuine smile. Nothing must escape his attention, especially good things. The magnetic person must be natural, he must always think of helping others by acquiring the power to help."

DEWEY RADIO CORP. IS STILL AT DEWEY SQUARE

In connection with a photograph of Ed Berman, formerly of the Dewey Radio Corporation of Boston, printed in two editions of yesterday's Evening American, a statement was made through inadvertence that Berman had taken over the business of the Dewey Radio Company. The correct story, which appeared on the radio page, stated that Berman and his brother, Leo, had taken over the business of two stores of the three formerly controlled by the Dewey Radio Corporation at 62 Stuart st., and Ira Brattle st. The caption with the photograph was erroneous.

In order that no misunderstanding may be caused, the Evening American is glad to make public the fact that the Dewey Radio Corporation is continuing its business at the third store which is located at 646 Atlantic ave., in Dewey sq., opposite the South Station. Only the Stuart and Brattle st. stores were involved in the transfer.

PROBE DEATH OF MAN AT SOUTH END HOME

Police today were investigating the death at City Hospital of Frank Tarvish, 46, of 46 E. Dedham st., who was found unconscious in the rear of his home early this morning by Harriet McPherson of the same address. He was sent to the hospital suffering from a fractured skull and died a short time later. Carl Jansen reported he saw Tarvish in his room on the second floor at 2 a. m., at which time a window in the room was open. Police believe he fell out.

JUST FIND THE PRETTY GIRL IN NEW CONTEST

The Boston Evening American today announces a pleasant little game that involves the finding of a very pretty girl, the securing of $10 in fresh new bills that mean money and attendance at a performance of "The Silent House," the season's outstanding mystery play.

All you have to do is look this pretty and pleasant lady in the eye and say:

"You are the lady from 'The Silent House.'"

In addition to the money for your purse you gain a six-months subscription to the Boston Evening American.

CHINESE THRILLER

"The Silent House" is a Chinese thriller that opens next Monday at the Majestic Theater.

If you want the hundred and if you desire to see the show, you must have your wits about you.

Also you must carry a copy of the Boston Evening American when you address the pretty girl and tell her she is the lady from "The Silent House."

These are all the requirements.

The pretty girl will ask a question or make some remark that will be called back to you if you do not happen to catch it up or when you read it in the next day's edition of this newspaper.

If you DO catch it up—then this game is over and you are the winner.

The pretty girl—and she IS pretty—will wander around Boston for two hours just as any girl might wander. She will be shopping; she may ask directions from a traffic officer; she may ride in the subway and pass a casual remark to a fellow rider.

If the person concerned is on the alert then that person will be the victor in the little game.

Beginning Monday, the Boston Evening American will print portions of this pretty girl.

You may put these together, day by day, and you will have a clue to her general appearance.

The rest is up to you.

STARTS MONDAY

Remember—the game starts on Monday. Get your Boston Evening American, have your eye focussed sharply, listen for a distinctive remark or a request for direction or information. Don't forget the eight words you must say.

You'll see a thrilling show—and you will feel the comfort of money in the pocket. And you don't have to be a man, of course, to own a pocket.

The legal, financial, agency and office management sections of the convention will hold their annual convention in conjunction with the main meeting. It is anticipated that upwards of 700 delegates will attend the meeting.

STUDENTS ATTEND CLASS WITH BEDSIDE RADIO

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP)—When Prof. T. V. Smith of the University of Chicago calls his class in philosophy together these mornings at 8 a. m. all that is necessary for students to do is to lie in bed and listen.

The hour of 8 a. m. is a bit early for student philosophers to arise, Prof. Smith, himself a philosopher, realized this. To meet the situation, he now broadcasts his lectures. Students may "attend" class by turning on their radios.

One-Minute Meals

There are times in the lives of all of us—there have been several of these times in my life this week when we simply can't stop for a full sit-down meal and yet we know that the body furnace needs fuel.

WOMEN—ATTENTION!

It's at these times that our good friend Toddy comes to the rescue and gives us the famous "meal in a glass." Toddy furnishes us carbohydrates that give us energy, protein, the tissue builder, mineral matter for nerves, bone and blood, and those mysterious vitamines so essential to good health.

And Toddy provides all these body-building essentials in a form uniformly and almost instantly assimilated and with scarcely any digestive effort. Toddy is not only enjoyed by well folk, but is widely used for convalescents, in nervous and run down conditions, for sleeplessness and in cases of stomach disorder. But remember, Toddy is not a medicine. It is a delicious and healthful food drink for everybody everyday.

With it you can make cold or hot Toddy, cookies, frostings, chocolate doughnuts, Toddy Tapioca Cream, fudge, Toddy cakes and cute little candies and a delicious Toddy Meringue Pie. Says a well known educator, "I find that the children I teach work better after having a cup of hot Toddy with their noonday lunch. Children love it and I gladly recommend it and hope other teachers will try this method." One of these children you know is undernourished. Often a little stomach cannot hold enough or slowly digested bulky food. Toddy, made with whole milk, provides every food essential needed for growth and strength in a form easily digested without waste.

Record Crowd at Martha Lee Cooking School

The record-breaking crowd at the third session of the Free Cooking School yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Statler, was estimated to be at least as great as ever attended any event for women in Boston. It was an inspiring sight, richly gratifying to the Boston Evening American and Sunday Advertiser which whose auspices Martha Lee and Mrs. Lilla Pauline Cress are conducting the classes, to witness the very enthusiastic interest of more than 3000 women, who had left their housework and social engagements to enjoy and profit by the experience and suggestions of the noted teacher. No one present felt that were being taught the elementals of cooking, but the audience knew they were observing any number of highly worthwhile ideas on how to make cooking more successful. No one present was being sold anything, so no prices were discussed.

The Annual Martha Lee Cooking School has established itself as being an educational function and not a food show nor an appliance exposition. Every food product used and every device employed and every principle demonstrated was there on its merits, and discussed only as it fitted into the purpose of the school, which is to give tested ideas to any woman interested in running her home more efficiently, more economically and more charmingly.

Martha Lee has fully justified her reputation for conducting a cooking school in an atmosphere of enthusiasm and real humor. There was much enthusiastic applause in response to the definitely constructive principles demonstrated. The audience liked the simplicity of the program, the charm of Mrs. Cress, who talks from the viewpoint of the housewife, the humor of many housekeeping anecdotes and the beneficial replies to the dozens of questions answered from the platform.

Real knowledge of the cooking art, from its scientific as well as its practical, every-day aspect, and a fascinating manner in imparting that knowledge have won for Mrs. Lee and Mrs. Cress a loyal following of appreciative women throughout this city and environs.

Tonight will be the big night for the distribution of major gifts that have caused so much favorable comment as being highly desirable contributions from Boston merchants in their effort to make the Annual Martha Lee Cooking School a success. The program at the closing session will consequently be the most interesting of all. We are very sure from the many comments made and the expressions of cordial appreciation showered upon Martha Lee and Mrs. Cress that many women are sincerely sorry the classes must be closed so soon.

The final session will be held this evening at 7:30. It is very likely seats will be difficult to secure. Special effort should be made to arrive early, as the doors will be open at 7:00 p. m., and until the lecture starts there will be a repetition of the musical program provided each session by the Boston Evening American. Also, this will be your last opportunity to ask questions on the blanks provided at the hall concerning any cookery or other housekeeping problem you may have in mind.

P. S. Many have asked if they may bring husbands, brothers and sweethearts? Do by all means! They can help carry home the gifts!

TIME-SAVING IN COOKING IN GLENWOOD GAS RANGE

When I was a little girl I remember "baking day." This day seems to stand out so vividly in my memory because it was one day in the week outside of Sunday that the eats oven was used.

It was filled to capacity with breads and coffee cakes, enough to last the entire week, and in those days if the bread happened to be rather hard, we were informed it was good for the teeth and would make our hair curl.

When I became interested in eating around the kitchen, I inquired why it was that the gas range was used only on baking day. I was informed quite emphatically that it was very much cheaper to do the cooking on top of the stove than in the oven. I questioned that and today I am inclined to question it even more than I did years ago.

The old idea that top-stove cooking is the only method to be followed has long lost its prestige, for which we are very glad. Top-stove cooking has its merits, there is no question about it.

But it is much more interesting to sit in the living room and read a book, entertain the children or some visiting guest and not have to keep your nose pitched at an angle to get the scent should the food be scorching on top of the stove.

The oven regulators such as are part of the Glenwood Insulated Gas Ranges have made a change in our method of cooking. Now we can get our dinner ready in the morning, place it in the ice box, at the stipulated hour, light the gas range, set the regulator, and put the food in the oven and forget about it until dinner time.

This savory blend of herbs and spices helped make your grandmother a good cook. And it's still 10c at your grocer's.

Aluminum That Wears

Did you really envy the ladies that have won the beautiful Wear-Ever Aluminum Dutch Oven and Roaster? I did, for these are two numbers that I've been planning for some time to add to my already pretty complete equipment of Wear-Ever Aluminum. Lots of people ask me why I am so partial to Wear-Ever and I am always glad to tell them some of the many reasons. First, because Wear-Ever does so much to eliminate worry from our cooking. We know that chops will cook to perfection on this thick satin-smooth surface of our aluminum frying pan, that the golden crust on our omelet, hash and fried potatoes will bear silent testimony to the superiority of this superfine kitchen ware. Then the, no matter what catastrophies befall, in the way of forgotten gas and serious burns, a little soaking in pure soap and water and our aluminum ware emerges from the smoky battle with a shiny face.

However, burning is a rare catastrophe for heat does not collect in the bottom of these Wear-Ever utensils, but spreads rapidly and evenly over the entire article.

They say a watched pot never boils, but water does boil in aluminum kettles in jig time, because the metal takes the heat so quickly and distributes it so evenly to all parts of the utensil. Wear-Ever Aluminum has no seams to tire our patience and ruin our manicures, and food cooked in them requires less stirring because there is less fear of burning.

You've seen many of the Wear-Ever Utensils in use here at the Statler School, and if you attend the lessons in the Martha Lee Kitchen at 5 Winthrop Sq., you know what light, fluffy, delicious muffins, gems, popovers and corn cakes we make in our aluminum muffin pans. We are proud, too, of our light, shiny aluminum bowls, our asparagus cooker which also holds six pint preserve jars,

Nature's Food at Its Best

Did you know that Hood's Grade A milk is much creamier and many times purer than the law demands? It is a natural food beverage which has been carefully produced and it is carefully safeguarded—so you may use and serve it with absolute confidence.

Give the children plenty of Hood's Grade A milk to drink, and bread and milk to eat. At least a quart a day is what each should have. It not only develops health and vigor but helps a growing child make better use of other food. For father and brother, Hood's Grade A milk is a better drink than many realize. Milk doesn't make mollycoddles. It makes brawn, and steady nerves. Try drinking it at noon and as a nightcap. The wise woman knows that the regular and liberal use of milk as a beverage freshens the bloom of youth and grandma appreciates it as a potent strengthener. As a drink for elderly people it is easily and thoroughly digested.

Hood's Grade A Milk comes from selected dairies having high grade mixed herds, which are regularly inspected by veterinarian. After this rich, clean product has been selected and inspected, as a further safeguard it is perfectly pasteurized for thirty minutes and then quickly cooled to 50 degrees or less, and kept cold until it is delivered. Pasteurization, while it safeguards the milk, does not, at least, in any way alter its digestibility, food value or flavor.

Before filling, all bottles used to carry Hood's Milk are thoroughly cleaned with a washing solution and then sterilized with boiling water. The milk is bottled and sealed by special machinery and by employees regularly examined for health by a registered physician. Grade A Milk is untouched by human hands. The bottle is covered with an outer seal, bearing upon it a printed statement of the day of the week on which the milk was perfectly pasteurized so that you positively know the milk you receive from Hood's is fresh.

Gelatine

One valuable food substance which must not be overlooked by the thrifty housewife today is Knox Sparkling Gelatine. It has become a household necessity.

Not the least of its virtues is its adaptability to so many uses. There was a time when gelatine was considered only when desserts were being planned, but today it has its place in every course from soup to dessert. Salads, puddings, ices, candies, jellies, ice cream and fancy desserts—all have an added tastiness when Knox Gelatine is used.

As a real economy in your cooking its value is unquestioned.

By the use of Knox Sparkling Gelatine, you are enabled to use up all small pieces of meat into a meat loaf, rice and nuts into a loaf used in place of meat, vegetables, left-over berries, fruit and fruit juices (fresh or canned) that are left over into salads and desserts—there is no end to the good things you can use it for.

And for specific uses when no other foods seems to be quite the thing, Knox Sparkling Gelatine offers a most satisfactory solution. For instance, if you have a convalescent in the house, or an invalid to whom most foods make no appeal, gelatine desserts prove appetizing and easily digested.

Or, when you want to give the children a specially happy time make them some pure wholesome candy with Knox Sparkling Gelatine, recipes for which I will gladly send you.

Knox Sparkling Gelatine comes in two packages. No. 1 is the plain, unflavored, unsweetened package, enabling you to make jellies, desserts and salads with it, and use the real fruit juices, fresh or canned, which are always superior to any fruit flavors to be found on the market. One package of Knox Sparkling Gelatine makes four pints of jelly, enough to serve 25 people. Two packages make a gallon of jelly, sufficient to serve a party of 50; or, it is so easily measured, you can make an individual dish. Here is a favorite recipe from my Crisco book. I'm sure to send it along to you, knowing you'll enjoy it as I do. 2 egg whites, stiff; 1 cup granulated sugar; ½ teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon vanilla; 2 tablespoons melted Crisco; 2 cup shredded cocoanut; 2 cup chopped nuts; 4 cone cr[illegible]ise. Add sugar and salt to egg whites beat until dissolved. Add Crisco and vanilla, then stir in cocoanut, nuts and cornflakes, which have been mixed together. Form into clusters any size you like on a greased baking pan two inches apart. Bake 18 minutes in a modern oven (350 degrees F.)

It is easy to make cakes and cookies with Crisco, for Crisco is easy to cream with the sugar, making our cake light, soft and fluffy (if you are one of those who dimly find it unbelievable that you can use all Crisco in cakes, try half butter and half Crisco at first. Then next time, perhaps, three-fourths Crisco and one-fourth butter. I am sure you will be as pleased with the results, that before you know it you will be using all Crisco for all your cakes.)

ACTION:

The Keynote of Modern Life

Modern life expresses itself in motion. Even though labor-saving devices may have lessened the hours devoted to household tasks, there has been a corresponding increase in social activities—in the speed of living—in the vitality and energy required to get through the day.

This added strain first shows up in the feet—a delicate network of nerves, blood vessels, and muscles bound together by marvelous arches.

Ordinary shoes destroy the structure of these arches—cause poor circulation, aching muscles, frayed nerves.

Arch Preserver Shoes because they are scientifically constructed to let the feet function as nature intended, correct and prevent foot troubles.

No other shoe can be like them because there are special patented features which only Arch Preserver Shoes are privileged to employ.

Arch Preserver Shoes, for women in Boston, are obtainable only at my two stores. My stock includes 16 lengths and 12 widths of shank; and sizes ranging from AAAAA to EEEE in width and from 3 to 10 in length.

GIFTS FROM MOXIELAND

Famous Mr. Archer, vice-president of the Moxie Company, invites all visitors to the annual Martha Lee Cooking School at the Hotel Statler to inspect Moxieland, the home of Moxie, in Roxbury.

Present From Moxieland

Every so often I feel the urge to sit down and write an unsolicited letter to Moxie Company telling them just how much Moxie means to me. Although my kitchenette is tiny, there is always a space saved—although with not a sixteenth of an inch to spare—for a case of Moxie, and Heaven help the one who takes the last bottle off the ice and forgets to put on another. For it's to the ice chest I go the first thing after I reach home from a strenuous day in the office. There is sip and zest in this famous drink, and no matter how wrong the day has gone—and all of us have those days, don't we—I can almost always see the silver lining through a glass of sparkling Moxie. I think everyone that tastes this bitter-sweet, refreshing beverage gets an irresistible tang that makes them realize that it's a "pretty good old world after all."

We certainly are very grateful to Frank M. Archer, Sr., who has supplied sufficient Moxie to the Martha Lee Cooking School at the Statler to enable us to include one bottle of Moxie in each of the market baskets that are given away every day, and two full cases of Moxie daily as special gifts.

The Soup Makes the Dinner

Is that an extravagant statement? Or do you agree with me that a good soup certainly puts the folks in a friendly attitude towards whatever follows. At our house we take no chances. We buy Campbell's canned soup and to each can just before serving, we add for seasoning 1 tsp. of Lea & Perrin's Sauce. In some varities we add a little more of the sauce. Why not try this tonight? Lea & Perrin's Sauce is a delightful seasoning for meats, fish, fowl, gravies, etc. Try it mixed with three parts of hot melted butter to one part of Lea & Perrin's Sauce and pour it over fresh cooked spinach. Add Lea & Perrin's to your French dressing.

CASSEROLE OF RICE AND MEAT

One cup raw rice, 2 cups cooked, chopped meat, 2 tsps. Bell's poultry seasoning, ½ tsp. onion juice, 1 tsp lemon juice, ¼ cup cracker crumbs, 1 egg, slightly beaten, salt to taste, water or stock to moisten.

Use any cold meat, chicken is especially delicious. Line a greased mould with cooked rice. Fill the center with the finely chopped meat, well seasoned with Bell's Poultry Seasoning and mixed with the above ingredients. Cover the meat with rice and the rice with buttered paper, to keep out moisture. Steam for 45 minutes.

and what Mrs. Johnston found out about the taste of cooking fats!

"WHEN I first saw the Crisco advertisement which said, 'Taste your Cooking Fat,'" wrote Mrs. W. L. Johnston, "I, being a woman and curious, opened the Crisco can and took a very little upon a spoon. I received such a surprise—and such a pleasant one! No wonder my biscuits, pies and cakes are so much better since I have been using this pleasant, sweet tasting shortening, Crisco."

Have you yourself ever tasted Crisco? Put a little Crisco on the tip of a spoon; on the tip of another a little of any other shortening. Taste first Crisco, then the other fat. Isn't the difference astonishing?

Crisco will make just as much improvement in your cooking results as its sweet, fresh taste would lead you to expect. Just try the recipes given below and you'll know exactly what we mean.

Whole Wheat Biscuits (Rolled)

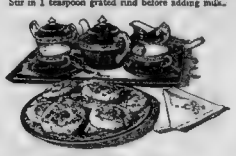
with or without raisins

Use one cup whole wheat flour in place of 1 cup bread flour. Add ½ cup Sultana Raisins before adding milk.

Lemon or Orange Tea Biscuits

(Dropped or Rolled)

Stir in 1 teaspoon grated rind before adding milk.



Maple Nut Biscuits

(Rolled)

Roll dough ¾ inch thick, spread with ½ cup shaved maple sugar mixed with 3 tablespoons Crisco. Roll and cut as for cheese biscuits. Lay in pan, sprinkle maple sugar over each and bake with ½ walnut in center.

Peanut Biscuits

Sift 1 tablespoon sugar with dry ingredients. Beat two eggs, add enough milk to make ¾ cup. Stir in ½ cup chopped peanuts before adding milk.

Master Recipe

for both "Drop" and "Rolled" Biscuits

2 cups bread flour 4 teaspoons baking powder ½ teaspoon salt 4 tablespoons Crisco	½-6 cup milk or water (for "drop" biscuits) or 2-3 cup milk or water (for "rolled" biscuits)

Sift dry ingredients together 3 times. Work Crisco in with fork. Add liquid gradually.

FOR "DROP" (Emergency) BISCUITS: drop by spoonfuls on Crisco greased baking pan. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 10 to 15 minutes.

FOR ROLLED BISCUITS: form dough into shape, roll ½ inch thick, cut. For scone-shaped biscuits, cut squares, then diagonally in half. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about 12 biscuits.

To use buttermilk or sour milk beat in ¼ teaspoon soda for each cup of milk. (If milk is very thick, use a little more milk.) Use same amount of baking powder and follow method for either "drop" or "rolled" biscuits.

GROVER CLEVELAND ALEXANDER, veteran of many campaigns, is the mainstay of the Cardinals pitching staff. The old master, who stopped the Yanks dead in their tracks two years ago, is prepared to duplicate that same feat again this year.

LONE RUN scored by the Cardinals. Jim Bottomley is shown crossing the plate after parking the ball in the bleachers for St. Louis' only run. He was the only Card to travel any further than first all afternoon, so great was Hoyt's pitching.

OFFICIAL OPENING. Judge Landis, commissioner of baseball, opening festivities by throwing out the first ball from his box seat. The Judge sat the entire game out.

The grandstand in the Gotham park is a three-tiered structure, and each tier was crowded to capacity when the game started, as the photo shows. It was a happy crowd, since the Yanks walked off with the ball game by a 4 to 1 score.

Five Veterans on Harvard Starting Team Tomorrow

ELEVEN HAS CHANGE FOR GOOD SEASON

When the curtain rises for the opening of another Harvard football season tomorrow, some 12,000 football fans will see the most inexperienced Crimson football team in years.

Coach Horween picked his varsity this morning at the offices of the Harvard A. A. and looking over that starting roster one finds that Harvard has only five members of the starting team against Yale playing against the little Springfield college tomorrow.

The eleven starters for the game with the Y. M. C. A. boys are as follows: Frank Pickard and Jack Douglas, ends; Red Barrett and Tim Clark, tackles; Jack Parkinson and Jim Trainer, guards; Jen Tickner, center; Elliott Putnam, quarterback, with a backfield of Arthur French, Wally Harper and Dave Guarnaccia.

TEAM CAN IMPROVE

On the whole it is a green Harvard team but a team which can improve immensely as the season wanes.

In his three years at Harvard, Coach Horween never had more confidence in an eleven than he places in his starting crew tomorrow.

It is a fairly heavy eleven averaging 184 pounds. The aggregate poundage of the starting line totals just 89 pounds over a half a ton averaging 155 pounds.

No man on that flank weighs less than 178 pounds while Tim Clark is the team giant, hitting the scales for a modest 215 pounds.

Harvard's backfield will average 173 pounds. Elliott Putnam is the lightest carrier of the quartet, weighing 165, with Dave Guarnaccia weighing just 20 pounds more.

It is a backfield with a lot of weight with a varied amount of offensive power.

TWO STARTERS NOT STARTING

Regardless of this announcement of these 11 men for the opening kickoff, it is far from the best Harvard team. Two men are starting this first game mainly as fillers-in, because of injuries to more experienced players.

Ben Ticknor is at center mainly because Henry Gildea is still hobbling along on crutches. At left end, Frank Pickard has been elevated to the post because of the shoulder injury which has kept Sam Burns out of the lineup ever since college opened.

Captain Art French, Dave Guarnaccia, Jack Douglas, Jack Parkinson and Forrester Clark are the five veterans who started the Yale game a year ago.

Elliott Putnam and Wally Harper are lettermen. Putnam playing two years ago, while Harper was substitute fullback last year.

Frank Pickard came up from the second team. Red Barrett was a team fullback a year ago and Ben Tickner and Jim Trainer were stars on the undefeated freshman team.

WILCZEWSKI AT GUARD FOR B. C. AGAINST NAVY

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

George Zeus Wilczewski will start at guard for Boston College in the game with Annapolis tomorrow. This was the only shift that Coach Joe McKenney had settled on as the Federal Express left for Washington with the B. C. grid squad.

Wilczewski was a regular for three seasons, and when he didn't start the Catholic University gang his friends were greatly surprised. Wilczewski is by far the most experienced guard on the squad. He played on the 1926 eleven of which Joe McKenney was captain.

Zeus is a giant, standing six feet two, and weighing 190 pounds. He's next to Dixon in size on the B. C. squad.

Wilczewski is a hard man to get started in a game, but once he gets a bit rutfled it's even harder to hold him in check. McKenney put him on the second club for a while and he'd storm up a little fight, and Joe is satisfied that his plans have turned out according to expectations.

Another change, forced by necessity, will find either Bernie Kilroy or Joe Frost starting at center. Andy Anderson, the regular pivot, has a knee that's up like a balloon. He's going on the trip but is not likely to get in the game.

Bill Gutherie, the B. C. fans were on hand to cheer the team off. Coach McKenney's parting words were, "we aren't confident of winning for the Navy may prove an inspired outfit. But it will know it's been through a real game and not just a workout."

The B. C. players, however, are confident although they know the strength of the squad. "We'll try to put over a win for Joe McKenney's sake," said Warren McGurk, captain of the Eagles.

This will, it seems, is going to win for the Eagles if they should come through. The Navy B. C. squad knows that McKenney's heart is set on sinking the Navy ship, and will play harder than ever before.

SHERDEL IN HARD LUCK

By BILL CORUM.

New York, Oct. 5—The nine reporters on the St. Louis team took notes on everything except what Hoyt had on the ball.

Walter Johnson sat in the press coop and shook his head sadly when the Yanks fell on Sylvester Johnson for three straight hits. That was no way to hit a Johnson to pitch.

By the way, Pytsch's mind must have been on the little cottage in Bedford Park when Gehrig rammed his single through there. The fiend set one of Fordham usually gobbles up that kind.

Such keen baseball men as Jack Flendricks and Johnny Evers maintain that both Ruth's doubles should have been caught. Perhaps. But the gent that grabbed that first one would hate had on his roller skates. I did think Hafey should have snared the second.

One of these fine autumn days poor little Bill Sherdel will get three weeks awake outfielders behind him and win a world's series game. Two years ago his pickers were running into each other to get at the ball. This year they took a different tack and ran away from it.

Old Tom Zachary Anxious to Go

By FORD C. FRICK

New York, Oct. 5—Out of the Hall of the Ancients has come a new figure to make its bid for glory.

Out of the forgotten past there may arise today the gaunt aspertes of another year to carry the standard of Yankee victory! Old Tom Zachary!

Old Tom, who two months ago was turned loose by the Senators as a has-been, old Tom of Carolina, the slow smile and the soft southern drawl; old Tom, who four years ago got his first taste of world series battle—and liked it.

Miller Huggins this morning half-minded to start Zachary today. Certainly it will be either Zach or Pipgras, and Pipgras yesterday toiled in the bull pen and needs a bit of rest.

Late yesterday afternoon Zach sat in front of his locker, a half-grin on his face. "Shucks! I can beat them guys," he muttered. "I can stop 'em cold. Ad I want is a chance."

The Yankees have a lot of faith in Zach.

Carter and Mandell Are Re-Matched

Matchmaker Sam Price of the Auditorium A. C. of Providence, grabbed a "natural" for the flatiron fans of the Rhode Island city when he signed Benny Kidd Carter, Boston bantamweight, to battle Tony Mandell, the Worcester lightweight in the feature bout at that club on Sept. 30.

These boys met twice and each bout was a real battle from the opening gong. Tony first clashed out in a close and exciting affair, but Carter was adjudged a winner. Their second meeting took place in Providence and the Worcester boy was declared victor after ten bitterly contested rounds

Peres Play Yellow Jackets Tomorrow

The Peru Marquette football team will play two games in as many days this week. On Saturday the South Boston Casey's play the strong Yellow Jackets at Philadelphia and Sunday afternoon at the C. C. Lee playground, South Boston, they play the reorganized and strengthened Dorchester Millmen team.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"I AM still thinking," said Mr. Boston, "of what Sam Carrick told me about World's Series winners. Sam asserted that the dope showed that the team that wins the first game of the fall classic usually takes the title.

"And all the experts agree that the Yanks copped the opening game. Meusel, Ruth, Hoyt, Gehrig and Koenig took care of that little thing.

"Of course the Yanks were supposed to be crippled and ready for the baseball morgue. I have always maintained that any ball club with Babe Ruth aboard isn't dead until parked under a few tons of earth.

"Remember the old saying, 'As Ruth goes, so go the Yanks!' It seems that the Bambino is going very good right now, bad legs and all. Maybe the dope about the team which grabs the first game also winning the series will hold true once more.

"That is, unless some unkind soul like Grover Cleveland Alexander decides to throw some ashes on the Yanks' slide to another world's championship.

"We'll see, friends and neighbors. Ask those office boys to stop fighting so that I can tune in and hear what's happening at the Yankee Stadium.

"THE fact that Ruth and Hoyt were at one time Boston baseball heroes gives local fans something to cheer about.

"THE big guns of the World Series have silenced everything else in sport. The boxing game in Boston will remain at a standstill until the fall classic is over.

"Even football, which has lustfully pushed its way on to the sport stage, will not get any of the spotlight until the Yankees and Cardinals have finished their affair.

"Football is keeping warmed up and as soon as the series is decided will take command of the situation.

"By the time the young men of West Point parade into the Harvard Stadium two weeks from next Saturday you will hardly know there was such a thing as a 1928 World Series game.

"As one blase editor remarked: 'A few years ago a big news story would kick up quite a fuss for 10 times, but nowadays the action is so fast that it takes quite a sensation to keep people steamed up for more than 48 hours.'

"SHELDON FAIRBANKS probably wishes the boys would stop talking baseball and football long enough to allow him to get in a few words about his new Garden at the North Station. 'When the Garden opens on November 13, Moneyboy Finnegan and Andrew Reutis will be the heroes of the hour. There is a time and place for everybody and everything in the great sport parade.

"THIS sporting racket has got to be an all-year-round affair. I can remember when sporting editors considered the year's work finished when the World Series ended.

"Now there is football on a big scale, boxing, hockey, basketball, and a million or so track meets and what not to furnish the sporting editor with excuses to remain away from the office.

"MEANWHILE we'll sit tight and see if Babe will bust one. Come on, you Babe!"

YANKEES IN 4 STRAIGHT, SAYS BENGOUGH

By BENNY BENGOUGH
Catcher, N. Y. Yankees

Yanks Stadium, N. Y., Oct 4—Who was it counted that the Yankees were a bunch of cripples?

I guess we showed 'em that we still have the punch. Hoyt pitched one of the best games of his career, just as I predicted

Tomorrow I look forward to Pipgras to do just as well as Hoyt did today, or almost as well. However, to hold the Cards to three hits is quite an accomplishment. We have beaten the Cardinals' best pitcher. We have nothing to fear now

I said in one of my previous articles that we could be sure to win a game in the first inning like we had won so many games during the regular season. So when Ruth and Gehrig doubled, the former scoring, I felt that this was just another ball game.

Both of the big siege guns doing their stuff. And when Hoyt retired the Cards in order in the second, after walking Bottomley, the first man, he never looked better. I knew because I caught him all season

The fans gave me a nice hand when I caught Doubit's foul close by the Cardinal bench. Somehow I didn't get a kick out of it. Cheers one inning, the razz the next. That's baseball

The Red Birds were touted as heavy hitters, but they curled up and died

They say that as Babe Ruth goes so go the Yankees

Well, if today's performance is any criterion we will win in four straight games.

Here's hoping we do.

'I AM NOT SO CRAZY,' ALTROCK

By NICK ALTROCK

New York, Oct. 5—Well, I don't claim to be one of them guys what can tell what you got up your sleeves by looking at your hand, but I told you that this series was like a New England dinner and would be decided at the plate.

I admit that the Yanks was as crippled as a whiffletree in a runaway accident, but any bunch of cripples what can win a pennant can also win a world serum.

I never saw a guy in my life what limped faster than Babe Ruth when he smacked two two-baggers and a single. When the Babe came back to the dugout, he put something in his mouth and Huggins said "are you chewing gum?" The Babe said "No, I'm taking my temperature." The doctor said if I pla baseball today I do on my own wrists."

Both Hoyt and Sherdel pitched a very good game for the Yanks. They didn't pitched so good as I used to in the old days, but they ain't bad. I said that batting would win today's game, and that the Yanks would do the slugging. Well, they did, and I guess that makes me an expert.

Coming back from the game in the subway there was a man laughing and we thought he was nuts.

Not Enough 'Iron' for Two Brown Elevens

Providence, R. I., Oct. 5—Two events of importance have served to make a shift of plans necessary for the opening game for the Brown-Varsity eleven, and the two-team idea that McLaughry had announced earlier in the practice work has been abandoned

Lack of capable men with which to weld together two eleven has forced the coach to place all his strong men on one team, and the Brown eleven that will take the field against Worcester Polytechnic Institute will be the best eleven that McLaughry can assemble.

The other development was not wholly unexpected, but is serious enough to cause some uncertainty as to his late date, for the word that Dolly Searle will not be available leaves the kicking post wholly to inexperienced men.

ACTION IN 5 CLASSES AT ST. JOE'S SHOW

The "Home of Action" will be in full swing once more tomorrow night, when St. Joseph's A. A. will conduct its weekly amateur tournament in Commercial Hall, Bowdoin sq.

Chief interest centers in the 175 pound class, where the battling was rugged last week. A large number of entries have been received in the lightheavyweight division, and some thrilling bouts are expected among the big fellows.

RABBIT THINKS CARDS TO EVEN SERIES TODAY

By WALTER "RABBIT" MARANVILLE

Sturtatep, St Louis Cardsinals, Written exclusively Universal Service. (Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service)

Yankee Stadium, New York, Oct. 5—I figured Hoyt was the only Yankee pitcher who could stop us. Well, he did it, and we have no kick coming. You can't win many games on three hits.

Sherdel pitched a good game, but it was just a case of being pitted against a man who was at the top of his form At that, I figure we will beat Hoyt the next time he starts against us.

We hit the ball hard at times, but there was always someone there to catch it. The Yanks haven't a real fine pitcher to put against us today, and it looks like a cinch we will even the series.

I wasn't a bit worried when the Yanks scored in the first inning. Lou and Babe are likely to hit anything Sherdel was pitching to Ruth and Gehrig just like he said he was going to before the game.

HOYT WAS CERTAINLY GOOD

When I faced Hoyt the first time, and filed out to Ruth, Waite was using a fast breaking curve, but didn't seem to be controlling it any well.

Nothing like being frank. When I thought that foul in the third over the leftfield boxes, I didn't know I had it, but the last second I thought it would be taken by Andy High. Just stuck my hand out and the ball landed in it. So what could I do?

Ruth was lucky to get a double in the fourth. He went all the way to center field, but Douthit was out of position and the ball fell safe. Bob Meusel's single run, however, was no fluke. The ball he parked into the right field bleachers was a high fast ball about three inches outside the plate.

George Harper started us in the right direction in the fifth when he singled with one down, but a force play on a second and an attempted steal which failed choked us off.

We started to get our eye on the ball in the seventh when Bottomley parked one in the right field stands. I thought Hafey's smash was going into the left field stands but Bob Meusel is too tall and nabbed it.

BREAK WAS TOUGH

That error of mine in the seventh was a tough break. I would have eaten up Dugan's tap nine times out of ten, but this was one of those times. The next man filed out harmlessly, however, so no damage was done.

I hated to go out of the game in the seventh for a pinch hitter, But Orsall got a base on balls, and when Holm batted for Sherdel we were all set for a rally. Poor Bill, he had pitched a great game, despite the three runs scored against him, and deserved a better fate.

It looked like Hoyt was taking a balloon ascension when he had three balls and one strike on Holm, but our hopes sank when Watty lined out to center. I didn't like the decision of calling Douthit, the next batter, out on strikes. Douthit was out of the batter's box, but the umpire ruled that the batter had stepped out of the box after Hoyt had started his pitch

Johnson, who relieved Sherdel in the eighth, was nicked for three singles in succession, but he showed plenty of nerve and stuff, and he may be heard of again before the world series business is over.

Radical Shift in U. S. Polo Team

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—A new shift in the United States international polo team today found 21-year-old Earl Hopping on the squad at the expense of the veteran star, Nicholas Stevenson.

Forced to drastic measures after the crack Argentine four took the second game and evened the series for the championship of the Americas, the defense committee of the United States Polo Association has dropped Stevenson, a veteran of two international series, from the team, shifted Tommy Hitchcock from his accustomed position at No. 2 to Stevenson's place at No. 3 and inserted Hopping into the lineup at No. 2 position.

W. Averell Harriman will remain at No. 1 and Winston Guest again will be at back when the third and deciding game of the series with the Argentines is played tomorrow.

MANY B.U. STARS ON SIDELINES

Boston University held its final scrimmage in preparation for the New Hampshire game Saturday. A practice game, lasting an hour, was held between the varsity and freshman teams. The varsity rode roughshod over the yearlings, and scored five touchdowns.

Ralph Marston scored twice for the varsity, both touchdowns resulting from runs. Al Spitzer and "Crab" Walke scored a touchdown apiece, both resulting from passes.

Spitzer's touchdown was a pretty piece of work; he completed a 30-yard pass from Walke right on the freshman goal line. Arthur Dorfman intercepted a pass and ran 40 yards for the fourth score, and Glen O'Brien made the fifth and final touchdown, going for a short run through the line.

The Terriers have been hard hit by injuries in the last week and will send a different team on the field against New Hampshire Saturday, than lined up against the Army a week ago.

Cy Perkins and Phil Hootstein, star freshmen halfbacks, are definitely out of next Saturday's game with the "Wildcats." Perkins cracked a small bone in his ankle and Hootstein has a twisted knee, both injuries from the Army game. Neither will be able to get into togs for another week.

Hugo Nelson, regular left halfback for two years, put on his uniform for the first time since the West Point game. He has been sick all week, but seemed in good shape. He took part in the signal drill and scrimmage.

Yankees Made 7 to 5 Choice in Betting

After the first game a firm of brokers at No. 70 Broad st. reported they have placed wagers of $7000 against $5000, or odds of 7 to 5, that the Yankees will win the world's baseball championship.

Odds on the second game are quoted at even money.

Special Court for Richards-Kozeluh

A special indoor tennis court, constructed so as to reproduce the bounces of an outdoor clay court, will be shipped to Boston from New York tomorrow, for use in the match Wednesday night at Boston Arena between Karel Kozeluh, greatest of European professionals and Vincent Richards, former Davis cup player and present American professional champion.

The court has just been built of a cork linoleum composition and will be in use for the first time. It is similar to the one which was used on the occasion of Suzanne Lenglen's visit to Boston

COLGATE STUDENTS HIRE PLANE TO SEE GAME

Hamilton, N. Y., Oct. 5—Five Colgate University students, who otherwise would be unable to attend the Colgate-Vanderbilt football game at Nashville, Tenn., on Saturday because the long trip would require the whole year's allowance of classroom cuts, have chartered an airplane and will make a non-stop flight to Nashville.

The group is scheduled to leave the Syracuse municipal airport tomorrow afternoon and should arrive at Nashville several hours before game time. A. Stinson Detroiter plane, with Frank T. McTymn, a commercial pilot, in charge, has been selected.

PERSHING REPORTS FOR VARSITY CREW AT YALE

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 5—Francis Warren Pershing, son of Gen. John Pershing, a sophomore in the Sheffield Scientific School, today reported as a candidate for the Yale varsity crew and is regarded as a promising oarsman.

Pershing stroked one of the freshman crews last year until he decided to withdraw from the competition for physical reasons last spring.

THE FACE OF SPEED

LEON DURAY

Speed demon, who will race at Rockingham on Columbus Day. Leon is after a new 200-mile record.

Series Sidelights

By LES CONKLIN

Yankee Stadium, Oct. 5—Mike Gazella looks speedy out there. He's almost the fastest man on the field. Change one letter of his name and he'd be a gazelle.

A radio hook-up is broadcasting this brawl from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and the loud-mouthed gazabo in the section next to the press is getting almost as much distance.

The millions of radio listeners heard everything yesterday except what Douthit said when the ump called a third strike on him in the eighth inning.

The tall, elderly man who just fainted at one of the turnstiles is a Yale professor who came all the way from New Haven, but forgot to bring his ticket.

Buster Gehrig started to say "Who wants me?" to a photographer, but what actually came whistling through his missing molars was "Hapboo Woothmy?"

Lou ought to wear a mask. He looks like Tom Heeney at the start of the 10th round.

The subway service was perfect today—the noise of the trains drowned out the band.

SARAZEN NEAR ELIMINATION

Five Farms Course, Baltimore, Oct. 5 (AP)—Gene Sarazen found himself dangerously near elimination in the semi-finals of the national professional golf championship tournament today when he finished the morning 18 holes five down to Leo Diegel. Sarazen was far off form, missing numerous easy putts.

In the other semi-final, Al Espinosa was six up on Horton Smith, Joplin (Mo.) youngster, at the half way point. Espinosa covered the first 18 holes in near par golf while the other three semi-finalists were in a slump.

Golf Stars Will Play for Lesley Cup Today

New York, Oct. 5—The golfing representatives of four districts will compete today in the Lesley Cup matches, a competition that dates back to 1905, with Pennsylvania, Massachusetts, Canada and New York taking part.

Play will consist of singles and foursomes over the links of the Winged Foot Golf Club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., today and tomorrow.

Massachusetts, winner last year by half a point margin over New York, will be handicapped by the absence of Francis Ouimet, former national amateur and open champion, and Phillips Finlay. In place of Ouimet, H. W. Pierce will captain the team.

Princeton Tapers Off for First Game

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 5—Kicking practice and dummy scrimmage constituted the tapering off process for the Princeton varsity football eleven this afternoon in preparation for the opening contest against Vermont tomorrow.

Ed Wittmer practiced the kick-off from the 40-yard line with the varsity eleven while a second team furnished the defense. The first backfield was made up of Graham Jones, Jack Norman and Mike Miles in addition to Wittmer.

Graham Jones and Trix Bennett turned in good performances at punting practice, with average boots ranging better than 40-yards. These men are assignments for the first two varsity line-ups this fall, although Jack Bequardt, Doug Lavick and Ed Wittmer each took their turns this afternoon. Three of the backs also worked on placement kicks for points after touchdowns. Ed Wittmer booted the ball while Jones held it.

WILLIAMS PRACTICES TRICK AERIAL GAME

Williamstown, Oct. 5—Williams received a light practice following a long scrimmage.

Watson, varsity center for two years, has returned to his old position at guard. It is also likely that Capt. Anderson will be used permanently at guard this year instead of tackle, which position he played for a time last week.

nay plots about the turnstiles. The chief once seemed to be the weather and the advance ballyhoo picturing every inch of space occupied and no chance for the late comer. There was not only room today, but an invitation to the late comers.

RUTH IN GOOD SHAPE.

The small early gathering got its customary thrill, however, when Babe Ruth, in his first turn in batting drill, fired three long shots into the right field bleachers. The Babe was swinging with his old abandon. Three hits for his first game left him in a happy mood and he seemed to be bothered no more than previously by his weak left knee.

The assurance that a right-hander would face the Yankees switched their lineup, with Cedric Durst in center field and Gene Robertson at third base in place of Dugan.

Earl Combs, regular centerfielder, was well enough on the road to recovery from his injured right wrist however, to take a turn at bat, swap two or three balls vigorously and go out for fielding practice. The chance that he would get into the series later, if not today, appeared much brighter.

The Cardinals didn't put in an appearance on the field until afternoon, but they didn't act or look a bit downcast over their initial defeat. Yankee performance in the first game, without crutches, appeared to encourage the rest of the casualties.

Even Herb Pennock, whose shin soupbone has been tied up with neuritis, was feeling good enough to warm up, but it was plain that the old freedom of pitching motion and control wasn't there. Nevertheless the Yankees who didn't have anything else to do stood around to watch their great portsider try to iron out some of the kinks.

The sun broke through the haze as the Cardinals came out to go through the preliminary paces and the band struck up a snappy tune.

SPEED KINGS IN TRIAL HEATS SUNDAY

The qualifying speed tests at the Rockingham Speedway, Sunday, will be in the nature of elimination tests as well, since but 14 of the 17 entries will be permitted to start in the $50-mile sweepstakes event October 12.

With that thought in mind, the pilots who are scheduled to face the watch will step on the gas from the start, leaving nothing to chance and getting the last possible ounce of speed out of these little racing machines.

Last summer, Leon Duray, with a mark of 141.1 set a track record that was expected to endure for some time, but already several of the drivers, in preliminary whirlaround the boards, have given evidence that they will approach, if not pass that mark and make a serious assault on Duray's world record of 148.1 miles.

Duray himself hardly will be in a position to go after the mark as his new car will require considerable tuning up, but he is almost certain of making the grade and the 125 Three of the July 4 event will again monopolize the attention of the fans.

Dave Evans, with his new creations, is figured to be the dark horse. Evans has repeatedly been around the track in unofficial estimates of 140 miles an hour or better.

Fifteen First-Game Winners Won Crowns

Fifteen times in the 24 World a Series of the past the team which won the first game won the series. Nine times the team which won the first came in second best at the end of the route.

Of the five series the Yankees have been in, they have won two—from the Giants in 1923 and the Pirates in 1927. They lost to the Giants in 1921 and 1923 and the Cards in 1926.

The Yankees won the first two games in 1921 and still lost. They lost the first game in 1922 and three more, only tying one. They lost the first game of 1923, but won the series. They won the first game in 1926 from the Cards and lost the series. They won the first games last year and each game thereafter.

Caldwell Likes Pro Football

New Haven, Ct., Oct. 5—Bruce Caldwell, Yale's spectacular plunging halfback last year, said today in the Yale Daily News that Yale's forward passing might be improved but that the team is well advanced for this stage of the season.

He praised the all-round form shown by his successor, Johnny Garvey.

Caldwell declared that he enjoyed professional football as a member of the New York Giants and that it is not as different from the college game as he expected to find it.

TUFTS READY FOR OPENER

After a very light session today, Tufts is expected to be in fine condition for her first game of the season on Saturday, with Colby, at the Oval. The workout will be devoted to signal practice and skull drill.

Yesterday's session was given over to a long dummy scrimmage and a short signal workout. As expected Hyhaut was at center instead of Fobey on team A, and the indications are that he, rather than the "Fighting Parson," will start the game.

There is one department of the game in which the Tufts team is unusually strong and that is end play. Arlanson and Austin are good receivers of the forward pass, fast down under kicks, and we to it that no plays get away from them when they are on the defensive.

VERMONT SET FOR TIGERS

Burlington, Vt., Oct. 5—There is no letup in the grilling tactics that have been adopted by the University of Vermont coaches this year. Some shakeups in the team have been made in practice, but about the same combination will face Princeton tomorrow as started the Columbia game.

With Captain Palmer and either Robinson or Sirois on the wings, and Burstein, Levine, Kropper, O'Keefe, Parks and T Scutakes to fill in between, the Vermont team has a strong defense in its forward line.

While the varsity is playing at Princeton Saturday the freshmen will be engaged with Clark School at Burlington.

BRITTON TRAINS HARD FOR NEXT BATTLE

While fistic crowds acclaimed the former champion as the greatest idol of the ring in his recent appearance here, Jack Britton himself was keenly disappointed when he failed to win by a knockout and now he is preparing to score an early victory when he steps into the ring with Jimmy McGonagle, the undefeated Weymouth boy, in one of the Argonne A. A. fistic features at Braves Field, Columbus Day afternoon.

And so eager is Britton to reach his best form for this contest, his second in this city on his comeback campaign, that he is working out both on the road and in the gym, in spite of the fact that he has not the necessary equipment for such work.

Britton did not intend to remain in the Hub when he came here and his gymnasium togs, together with running shoes, sweat shirts, etc., are in New York, yet he hits the road daily attired in street clothes and walking shoes.

McGonagle is being provided with a brilliant opportunity for a victory over the man who held the championship for ten years will just about make him in the ring and the Weymouth boy is training with all diligence.

The feature event on the card between Arthur Flynn of Lawrence and Louis Scozza of Buffalo promises to develop into one of the most gruelling middleweight bouts ever staged in this city.

Hub Elevens Meet in Wigwam Twin Bill

By DICK McSWEENEY

Now that Mechanic Arts and Brighton have started things by coming together in a football joust which ended in a scoreless tie, the minions of Dorchester high and East Boston, as well as the grid warriors of English High and South Boston will continue the Hub school series by invading Braves Field this afternoon for the first football double-header of the season.

Dorchester high wants to start its season with a win over East Boston if possible, and with Hago Harrington, Fimental, Cummings and Aiello in the Dorchester backfield, victory is not only possible, but probable.

Coach Pendergast expects a stiff battle from East Boston, however, and is not going to let his charges get overconfident. He realizes that overconfidence has wrecked the hopes of many a grid team.

Capt. Jim Doherty, Louis Glavinsky, Louis Muscow, are the only players on the English high squad who may be called veterans. But South Boston is short of veterans also, as only Joe Curran, Jim Coyne, and "Speed" Reardon had experience last year.

This game ought to be close but English high should have a slight edge.

Other teams besides the Boston outfits will be playing today, St. John's Prep takes on the Harvard Seconds, Arlington visits Quincy, Watertown entertains Meteorof, Belmont Hill goes to Country Day, Thayer Academy plays host to Roxbury Latin, Rivers school plays Browne and Nichols, Rockland will struggle with Braintree, Dedham journeys to Hingham, Tufts Freshmen clashes with Huntington School, and Mitchell School is playing Wilmington.

The Boston Latin eleven which faces Gloucester tomorrow will be made up as follows: Loughran and Mellen, ends; Horovits and Cohen, tackles; Tracy and Ingalls, guards; Gould, center; Rabinovitz, quarterback; Mullen, right half; Block, left half, and Warren, fullback.

Russell Lynch, husky end, is ineligible at present, but when the faculty ban is lifted, he is going to be one of the regular wingmen. Mellen will vie for him in the clash with Gloucester.

Latin school has some good replacement material in Goodwin, quarter; Downes, center. Lawler, end, and White and Balkan, tackles.

Bill Adler, Latin's captain, is having his injured arm massaged daily and he expects to get into some games later in the season. Copans would be one of the first team tackles if it were not for his injured knee. He, like Adler, is doing all in his power to get into good condition before the season wanes.

Bill Kelliher's Boston College freshman team opens its season with Lynn General Electric Apprentices tonight in a game which will be played at the General Electric Field under flood lights.

For the past few weeks the Eagle yearlings have been scrimmaging with the B. C. varsity in preparation for tonight's game with the Lynn outfit.

Many former high school and prep stars are on the B. C. eleven which Coach Kelliher thinks is equal to his famous team of 1927.

Coach Sherlock of Hyde Park high has been scrimmaging his charges this week in an effort to pick his first team.

The Hyde Park backs, although green, have looked good in practice sessions.

Keefe, Lockhart, and Trenholm are three backs who can punt fairly well, while Killelea has the stuff to make a good end, and Higgins seems slated to play left tackle.

Charlestown high, with only one veteran back, is handicapped by a lack of experimental material. Coach Ford has four good backfield men, however, in the persons of O'Neil, O'Donnell, Todd and Farant.

Francis Linsky, captain and end, is the sole veteran on the team.

Women Polo Teams Play Again Sunday

The final match in the International polo tournament to decide the supremacy of women's teams, representing the United States and Canada, will be played on the Westchester Biltmore Polo Field, No. 1, Rye, N. Y., Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. The team from Calgary, Alberta, is still smarting from the defeat which it sustained September 26, when the Westchester County team won the first game, 6 to 3, and is eager to redeem itself by taking the final game and scoring enough goals to give it the championship.

Japs Go Wild Over Big Series

Tokyo, Oct. 5 (AP)—The situation in China and even the Emperor's departure for the north to take personal command of the annual military maneuvers took second place in the Japanese press today while the nation read dispatches from the Yankee Stadium.

Japan, for many years an ardent admire, of the American sport, is evincing an unprecedented interest in the world series and the afternoon editions of Tokyo and Osaka papers have been devoting half of their main news pages to it.

Banner headlines were used to tell the Japanese "Yankee's win first," and even provincial papers took play by play accounts, while the metropolitan dailies printed several columns including full box scores and pictures of Hoyt, Bottomley, Meusel, Ruth and Gehrig. Even the radio was pressed into service and the contest was broadcast.

Prince Nicholas of Rumania, who, like his brother, Crown Prince Carol, forgot his true love to elope to Paris. Unlike Carol, he is returning to Bucharest, the episode ended. Inset is of "mystery girl," whose photo he constantly carried during U. S. visit.

LOVE'S ALL OFF FOR RUNAWAY BOY PRINCE

Paris, Oct. 5 (AP)—Although it was denied at the Rumanian legation that he had been summoned home because of a love affair, Prince Nicholas of Rumania was on his way to Bucharest today, accompanied by a Rumanian diplomat.

His visit to Paris with a companion started rumors that he intended to follow the course of his brother former Crown Prince Carol, even if it cost him his title.

At the Rumanian legation the visit of Nicholas was represented as being nothing out of the ordinary for a young man of twenty-five and it was stated that he was going home because that visit had ended.

The legation insisted that the adventure involved no such scandal as was likely to bring upon Nicholas the fate of Carol, whose affairs of the heart caused his banishment from Rumania and the loss of his right to the throne.

The published report that Nicholas had eloped with an aristocratic Rumanian was energetically described by the legation as false, although it was not denied that Nicholas had been in Paris with a woman.

The Prince sought privacy with a vengeance as he boarded the Orient express chaperoned by the Rumanian diplomat. He slipped into the train from the stationmaster's private office and gave photographers and reporters the slip.

So determined upon privacy was Nicholas that he even failed to call on his elder brother Carol, who as Mr. Carol Caraiman was stopping at one of the palatial hotels on the Champs Elysees within a stone's throw of that occupied by Nicolas during his brief visit.

Carol himself has been in Paris without Mme. Magda Lupescu, for whom he abdicated. She has remained in Belgium in a medieval chateau at Ardennes, while Carol has been understood to be engaged in some financial business in Paris.

SWEET, DEMOCRAT, TURNS ON AL SMITH

Weatherford, Tex., Oct. 5 (AP)—Asserting that no one but a "wet" could have attended the national Democratic convention as a delegate, former Gov. William E. Sweet of Colorado, in a speech here, attacked the prohibition record of Gov. Smith. Mr. Sweet is a Democrat.

He also criticised the Democrats who will refuse to vote for Smith, but will go fishing election day to keep from voting for Hoover.

"You can't be neutral in this election and retain your manhood," he said.

SERIES OF BURGLARIES GET HIM 5-YEAR TERM

Frederick W. Tuma, 23, pleaded guilty in Superior Criminal Court of Suffolk County to a series of burglaries committed in apartments in the Back Bay, Brighton and West Roxbury, and was sentenced by Judge Fosdick to the State prison to from five to ten years. He now is serving a term of from three to five years in Charlestown for similar offenses in Cambridge.

John Bull Isn't as Thirsty as He Used to Be

London, Oct. 5 (INS)—Great Britain appears to be voluntarily going dry, official figures show.

In 1910 the consumption of spirits in England was 33,290,373 gallons. In 1913 it had declined to 22,004,432 gallons. Today it has fallen to 10,412,921 gallons, and is growing less daily.

The figures for Scotland, "the home of whiskey," are still more significant. Consumption of spirits in Scotland was 4,837,095 gallons in 1900 against 6,709,413 in 1913 and 2,456,200 last year.

The decline in beer drinking has been equally striking. Consumption in bulk barrels has been as follows:

	1900	1919
Scotland	3,360,196	2,119,985

The actress, who starred several years ago in the film "Kick In," charges her Hollywood husband with cruelty. They were married on January 16, 1926. Service in the suit was made [illegible] in Hollywood. The pair [illegible] residence in Stamford.

Martha Lee Gives Pointers on Making Dainty Hash Dishes

AN ENGLISH member of my family tree claims to be a hash connoisseur, and my very earliest literary flight was (or maybe it was a slight) entitled "When Albert Makes Hash." It was a fact that he could cook the most marvelous hash ever found in captivity, but it took the combined efforts of the entire family and the use of every dish, pot, pan and skillet in the kitchen equipment.

Co-Partner Martha Lee

Here's his recipe:

Baked Hash—Mix together 1 c. of cold meat (preferably corned beef) chopped fine, 3 c. cold boiled potatoes also chopped, ½ an onion chopped fine, 3 stalks of chopped celery or ¼ tsp. of celery salt, 1 c. of stewed tomatoes, ¾ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. of pepper, 2 tbsp. melted bacon fat or beef drippings. Heat an iron frying pan very hot.

Melt a tbsp. of butter in it, put in the hash, and either cook on the back part of the range or bake 45 minutes.

And next I am going to share with you a dish I collected in Savannah several summers ago.

Southern Hash—Peel four potatoes and remove the seeds from 2 green peppers. Chop both potatoes and peppers coarse. Also chop 1 onion. Cook in ¾ c. of a cup of meat stock or boiling water (stock can be made with bouillon cubes) until tender. Add 1¼ c. of cold chopped beef, 1 c. of thick stewed tomatoes (or 2 fresh tomatoes when they're in season) and cook them with the other vegetables, adding salt and pepper to taste.

Melt 2 tbsps. of drippings in a thin iron or aluminum frying pan. Turn in the mixture; brown attractively and serve on hot platter with toast points. If corned beef is used you'll not require so much salt.

Corned Beef Hash With Beef—Chop 1¼ c. of corned beef. Coarsely chop 3 c. boiled potatoes and ¼ c. cooked beets. Mix together and add 1 tsp. of grated onion, ¾ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. of Worcestershire, ¼ c. of stock or boiling water. Mix thoroughly. Melt 2 tbsp. of beef drippings in thin frying pan and when very hot add the hash.

Cook slowly, until the rich brown crust is firm. Fold and serve on hot platter. If the corned beef is fat, you'll not need so much fat in the frying pan.

Another delicious way to use left-over meat is a shortcake. Mix 1½ c. of cooked chopped meat, ½ c. of chopped, tender celery tops, 1 tsp grated onion, ¼ tsp. of salt, ¼ tsp. paprika, ½ tsp. dry mustard and 1 c. of left-over meat gravy or thickened stock made from a bouillon cube. Let this simmer in a deep iron frying pan for about 15 minutes. Serve between layers made by doubling the shortening in your favorite baking powder biscuit recipe.

Ever hear of any better recipes than these? I am wondering if any of you have ever tried liver patties? Maybe the name won't intrigue you but the finished product will.

Liver Patties—Mix together 2 cups of chopped cooked liver, 2 cups of mashed potatoes, 2 tbsps. finely chopped pickles, salt and pepper to taste. Grease ramekins, sprinkle them with coarse bread crumbs and fill with the liver mixture. Bake 15 minutes in hot oven. Turn out on serving dish and serve with brown gravy or tomato sauce.

When I opened the front door of my apartment house home last night, themost delicious and inimitable odor of baked finnan haddie rushed out to greet me, reminding me how many moons it had been since I had enjoyed a finnan haddie feast. A thick, moist finnan haddie baked in milk and served with big mealy baked potatoes and lots of butter is truly fit for both queen and king.

Here is the simple old-fashioned way of preparing this penny-saving recipe:

Baked Finnan Haddie in Milk—Wash fish, and soak in lukewarm water for four hour as an hour. Put in baking pan, add ¼ cup of milk and ½ cup of water, and bake about 15 minutes. Baste often. Remove to platter, spread with butter, and strain liquid in the pan over fish.

Fish hash is another old favorite that could well be resurrected for breakfast or lunch. It's wholesome inexpensive and truly delicious when properly made. Here's the method:

Fish Hash—Soak 1 pkg. shredded codfish in lukewarm water 15 minutes. Drain and squeeze in cheesecloth. Add 2 cups hot mashed potato and ¼ tsp. pepper. Beat well, try out ¼ lb. salt pork cut in thin slices in frying pan.

When crisp, but not burned, remove the scraps to a hot platter, spread the hash in the pan with the fat and stir well. Cook slowly until well browned. Fold like an omelet and serve with the scraps.

Meat and Tomato Pie—Two cups cooked meat cut in inch pieces, 1 can tomatoes drained, salt and pepper, ½ cup fine crumbs, ½ cup gravy or stock, ½ tsp. onion juice, 1 tsp. Worcestershire, baking powder biscuit.

In a deep dish arrange in alternate layers meat and tomatoes cut in pieces; season each layer with salt and pepper and sprinkle with crumbs, add onion and Worcestershire sauce to gravy and pour over all. Bake 20 minutes in hot oven; remove and drop the biscuit mixture by spoonfuls on top; bake another 15 minutes. Use tomato juice for either soup or sauce.

More modern but quite as economical and tasty is a

Meat Soufflé—One and one-half cups hot stock or milk, 2 tbsp. butter, ½ cup dry bread crumbs, 1½ cups chopped meat, 1 cup celery or cabbage chopped fine, ¼ onion chopped fine, 1¼ tsp. salt, ¼ tsp. pepper, 3 yolks 2 eggs, 3 whites 2 eggs.

Mix in order given. Beat the yolks until thick and light and the whites until very stiff. Bake in moderate oven about half an hour. Any leftover meat may be used.

The thrifty budgeters are heavy on my conscience these days, and I'm trying to fit my recipes with their scheme o fcareful buying. I'd love to know if I've succeeded.

Bye for today,

MARTHA LEE.

Giving Presents -:- -:-

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

A BOY FRIEND MAY NOT GIVE EXPENSIVE GIFTS BUT WOULD BE A GOOD HUSBAND.

By Beatrice Fairfax

An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

THIS present giving business!

What joys and sorrows it brings! What happiness and what misunderstanding it often causes between sweethearts!

In today's mail I received a heart stirring letter from a girl who is suffering tortures because her sweetheart did not give her a present on her birthday, nor did he send her any greeting on New Years or Easter.

"I have been going with him for five years and I know he loves me . . . I have no doubt of that," she writes, "but when my family and my friends ask me what presents he gives me it breaks my heart to have nothing to show them. What shall I do, tell them the truth, or go out and buy myself something and pretend he gave it to me?"

"Unknown" also asks whether she ought to marry a man like that.

Now, her situation presents an interesting field for discussion. First and foremost, this boy friend of hers may not be the "giving" kind. Perhaps he has never been taught the little niceties of courtship; he has never been trained to be thoughtful and considerate. At the same time he may be a splendid man. He may have every other qualification for a good husband.

I know a man who has been married for twenty-five years, and his wife has no objection to telling every one she knows that he has never once given her a present, except at Christmas time, and then it is usually money because he can't think what she might like. But this couple are nevertheless ideally happy. He is a splendid provider, takes his wife abroad every summer, has a car and chauffeur for her own personal use takes a fine, paternal interest in their children and does everything in his power to make his family happy and contented.

This wife simply accepts the fact that her husband never was the present-giving type, but she appreciates the fact that he has been a loving, loyal spouse. So, says she, why complain because he doesn't bring me home bar pins that I have no use for, silk negligees of a color I might hate or any one of the thousand other silly and inappropriate gifts men buy for the women they love and which these women have to pretend they like.

On the other hand, "Unknown" may not be the type who could reconcile herself to this type of man. If she is not, she should immediately put him out of her heart, for marriage certainly would not change him, and with that never recurring grief in her heart she could never be happy.

If she can reconcile herself to this disappointment she should not let the inquisitiveness of her family or her friends make any difference. She might just as well be frank about it, if she cares to answer their questions, and simply say, "Well, he just doesn't give me presents, but if I don't care, why should you?"

There's still another side to "Unknown's" situation that needs straightening out, and that is that five years is too long for a young girl to go with a man who has not made her completely happy. It is even much too long to be engaged. There may be exceptions to this statement, but I am convinced that "Unknown" would be far better off were she to break off with this young man, put him out of her mind and find some one else whose courtship would make her happy and would lead to marriage. From her letter I am sure she is the kind of girl who looks forward to happiness in marriage, and I greatly fear she would never find it with the young man who, after taking up five years of her time, does not even realize that he is not making her happy. He may be happy himself, but it also isn't it's time for her to make a new start.

Fashion Fads

Every dog has his day, but the rogues of the boutonnieres to still with us. Daintily fashioned boutonnieres of intricate designs are made up as fine crystal blossoms, berries of artificial glass and pearls, and posies of knitted wool or hand-painted wax.

The sleepy time gal will do well to wear one of the little gold net caps for evening. These caps come in a variety of designs, but they are all cut on the close-fitting hamet type. A particularly stunning one is made of gold woven flowers.

All's well that ends well, so pay strict attention to your uneven hemline this season. One of the most singular seen so far is the one inch dip in the back of a gray tweed suit under which resumes its normal position in a very sudden manner.

If a wish could make it so, we would make ourselves the possessor of one of the new shaved lamb fur coats in the new cafe au lait shade. An added attraction is the little fur cap which comes with them and which is made up in two shades of beige.

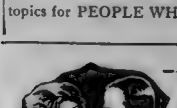
This Day In History

ON October 5, 1918, the imperial German chancellor, Prince Maximilian, in the Reichstag, proposed an immediate suspension of hostilities. He suggested that the Entente Allies be asked to state their peace terms.



STOLEN LOVE

Will Any Man Love a Girl Who Has a Past?

didn't matter. But think of dancing . . . dancing . . . with Bill . . .

They circled the floor, and he led her through the maze of dancers out into the hall. Stood facing her with a little twisted smile. "You are very lovely, Joan."

She twisted the wisp of handkerchief in her hands, looked anxiously past him, back to the dancers, trying to find Rolio and Ruth.

"They'll be looking for us. Hadn't we better—"

But he blocked the way. "Joan, you've changed so. I—I can't get used to it. To think of finding you here—with Ruth—"

"It's you," she wanted to whisper. "You've changed. You're the one, not I! I'm just—Johnnie still!" But she couldn't trust her voice, and besides there was Ruth, Ruth, between them—

The music had stopped. There came the faint ripple of applause, the clatter of heels on the polished floor, the dancers were going to their seats.

She took another step, toward the door.

And suddenly he took her hand, held it in his big, warm grasp. "Joan—tell me. Joan, are you happy with this—this [illegible] I saw you with—"

"Curtis?" she faltered.

"Yes—Curtis. Are you? Joan—for God's sake—tell me the truth!"

Her knees wobbled, her heart beat crazily against her side. "Do you care that I am? Does it mean anything to you—now?" But the words that trembled on her lips were never said. Rolly and Ruth were back looking for them. The ghostly garden melted away.

"Hiding out on us, you fakers! Of all the nerve. Come on back—I never saw such a girl!" Ruth was laughing, a little too loud and shrill.

"Are you, Joan?" he asked again. But the little moment of magic had passed, would never come back again.

"Is she what?" Ruth mimicked, taking his arm.

"Am I happy, he's asking?" Joan cried, and threw back her head, laughing too. Her eyes were on Bill, the new Bill again, with the glittering Ruth clinging to his arm. Don't look it! Don't I? Don't I?"

"But where did you meet him?" Ruth persisted.

"Oh, a long time ago, at school." "Sweethearts, I suppose."

Joan shrugged. Went on basting the soft silken stuff in her lap.

Ruth got up and closed the door. They were in the workroom now. Going to try and get him back?"

"Of course not—don't be silly. It is, wasn't anything, really."

Ruth burst into tears. Her voice, when she spoke, was strangled. "I know I'm a fool—a jealous fool. I ought to be hard-boiled, heaven knows, with two divorces and everything, but I've got that soft streak in me, always falling for somebody like a ton of bricks . . . and with William and me it was love at first sight. I was going with Rolio, and all set for the wedding, and I met William . . . I can't even plain it, but it was different from any time before . . . we were one right from the start . . . each other . . . different . . . ."

"All right—but don't talk about it, please!"

"But he was so cold when he kissed me good-bye," Ruth sobbed. "Not a word, not a look. I didn't sleep a wink all night. So I thought—"

Joan closed her eyes. "Please—please don't talk about it—"

Ruth saw Joan's face, greenish in the half light. "Joan—there's no use in you and I falling out over him. You saw him first, and now it's I, but there were others, and there will be others—I'm not fool enough to forget that, and don't you be So—"

"Ruth!" Joan almost screamed. "I'm telling you the truth. I was never so sick and disgusted with anyone in my whole life as I am with Bill Martin. I'm sick of looking at him, and sick of hearing about him. No, for heaven's sake—stop!"

"Oh—if that's the way you feel about it." Ruth took out her vanity box, began to repair her pretty complexion. "Good night! Will you look how my eyelashes have run!"

Lyla Barstow read her son's letter twice. It was like Curtis to write, instead of talk. If he had spoken of it before he left she could have found some good excuse. Some reason why it would not be convenient to have Joan to dinner or tea But when he wrote from Seattle, and especially asked her as a favor . . . what could she do?

Sighing, she went to the telephone. Called the Maison Francine. Asked for Joan.

Joan didn't want to come, but she did.

Mrs. Barstow was in a gracious mood. She studied the girl's clear cut, lovely features while she piled her with toasted muffins and small talk. Noted the absence of make-up. The slender, well-cared for hands. Perhaps . . . Just perhaps . . . Curtis wasn't far wrong. . . .

So many of the girls were part and ordinary these days, even from the nicest families.

"I had the pleasantest day yesterday," she said, making conversation.

"With old, old friends, in the sweetest, most old-fashioned house. You would have enjoyed seeing it. I'm sure, you like old-fashioned things so. And such a garden! Even in winter."

"Where was it?" Joan asked, politely.

"Oh, the old Horace Gray place, over in Sausalito."

"The Gray's. Why, that's right below our house!" Joan cried. And could have bitten off her tongue. "Indeed?" Her mind went racing back to Sausalito . . . now what sort of place was above the Gray's? Were there any shacks . . . or did she remember rightly . . . just two or three big, old places out that way.

Desperately Joan jumped to safer ground. "Mrs. Barstow, may I have more tea? I'm so thirsty. Scandalous appetite; We worked awfully hard today, Francine is designing four stage costumes for Gilda Bronson, the star in that new play at the——"

"Really? Have another muffin dear, Marmalade? Now let me see, the Hastings house in Sausalito. Do I remember it? I know Sausalito quite well. Lottie Gray and I are such old friends. Just where is your house—above the Grays did you say?"

Joan nodded. "Yes, you probably never noticed it—it's rather off by itself."

And she blushed as she thought of the yellow turrets, that everyone knew for miles.

"Hastings . . . did I know any Hastings?" (Were your people the kind I'd know?)

"They died when I was a baby," Joan said. She had to say something.

"Oh . . . but who brought you up, my dear?"

"My aunts."

"And their name was?" the inquisition went on.

"Van Fleet!" Joan cried, explosively. What did she care? What was there left to worry about? The Sedgwicks had found out where she was, and nothing happened. They must have told Aunt Evvie and Aunt Babe. What could Mrs. Barstow do?

"Van Fleet!" that lady echoed. "Why, of course, I knew the old Van Fleet mansion . . . why did you never tell me? And you must be one of the grandchildren. How interesting!" She moved her chair a little nearer Joan's. Poured herself another cup of tea. "Spend the evening with me," she begged. "It has been so long since we've had a real visit." Her delicate white hand stroked Joan's

"And did you see the Russian ballet this season? We must go to some of the symphonies together," Mrs. Barstow chatted on. The new book of Christopher Morley. The dreadful time they were having in China.

Joan answered vaguely.

They were both thinking about Curtis, being sweet to each other, for his sake.

Now She Swims!

First She Waded, Then She Posed; Now She's an Adorable "Fish"

DRAWN BY Dorothy Flack

© 1928 by Int'l Feature Service, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved.

TIME was when a trip to the beach necessitated the most terribly clumsy outfit, which everybody was pleased to call a bathing suit. Yards and yards of ugly flannel and huge hats and—whisper softly—even tight stays were part of the costume. Then, the belle of the beach simply waded in the water, wetting her tootsies and shrieking with fear every time a wave rolled shorewards. Then, times and fashions changed and she was all dressed up in lovely satin and silk and bedruffled and fluffled all to the weights above of which would have pulled her down under the rushing waters. So, she simply posed and looked lovely and, "bathed" in the admiring glances cast her way.

But now—now she swims! And divest! And vies with her brother in feats of water prowess and he has a hard time to keep up with her. No frilly clothing for her no big hats; no doubles under her rushing victory over the billowing waves. No siree! and she hasn't lost one whit of the charm that so enthrals all bathers, of all who behold her

Now she's a pal, not a pose! Now she swims—straight into the heart of all who behold her

Dr. Brice Belden Discusses Some Aspects of Ethics of Tuberculosis

By DR. BRICE BELDEN

YOU often hear about "ethics," which, of course, you recognize as the science which treats of the rights existing between man and man. The safe guide to ethical relationship is a desire and an intelligent effort on the part of each to adjust himself, and to assist others to adjust themselves, to the unchanging, underlying law as it makes for human welfare and human happiness. That is the natural law—the lexism—underlying all my articles and all conscientious efforts to prevent disease and prolong life.

There is no more striking example of this fundamental fact than is to be found in the social aspect of tuberculosis. Thus, the success or failure of an individual to adapt himself to the natural law governing tubercle bacilius depends upon the size and frequency of the infective doses to which he is exposed —or, rather, upon the infectious contamination of the atmosphere which he breathes during infancy, childhood and adolescence.

This is what the doctors call the "infective potential." It depends, in its turn, upon the presence of carriers of the bacillus in the environment of the individual, on the extent to which these carriers are infective, and on the degree of intimacy of contact between the individual and the carriers. In agricultural life, where the density of population per acre is low, the exposure to infection, if it occurs at all, will take place mostly in the homes of infected persons. There will be few opportunities for addition to "small doses" in the working-day life of the fields. There is, therefore, a greater risk in the exposure to large doses if the individual meets an infected person at home. This explains why there is so much tuberculosis among the poor in the farming districts. In the crowding of the other hand, there will be frequent opportunities for transitory contact with infection outside of the home, and the chances of adaptation will be even greater.

It is possible to formulate certain terms expressive of the natural law of human adaptation to tuberculosis, as follows:

1. There can be no adaptation without previous contact with the tubercle bacillus.

2. Within certain limits the degree of adaptation varies with the amount of previous contact with which previous contact has led to infective foci in the tissues.

3. In persons successfully adapted to tuberculosis the presence of infective foci in the tissues is consistent with health, and such persons are relatively resistant to reinfection and liable to a progressive development of their pre-existing infection into chronic disease if they are exposed to undue physiological or pathological stress or to massive reinfection.

4. Adaptation to tuberculosis through previous infection is calculated to modify the whole machinery of response to subsequent reinfection.

5 In persons unadapted or only slightly adapted to tuberculosis exposure to massive infection is likely to result in acute, progressive and rapidly fatal disease.

These laws are supported by animal experiment, in harmony with epidemiological findings, both statistical and clinical, and they afford a definite basis for anti-tuberculosis measures.

I have permitted these "laws" to stand as expressed by S. Lyle Cummins. Translated into plain English they mean: (1) You can't have tuberculosis without the tubercle bacillus; (2) to a certain extent through contact with the tubercle bacillus, you can become immune to its action; (3) if you acquire such immunity, or adaptation, you may have even a tubercular focus in your system without having tuberculosis; (4) if you have had tuberculosis once, and recovered from it, you will behave differently when you come in contact with it a second time; (5) if you haven't had tuberculosis once, or otherwise gone through these "adaptations," a big dose of tuberculous infection is more liable to kill you

How Much Can Love Forgive? Asks Miss Beatrice Fairfax

By Beatrice Fairfax
An Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

HOW much can love forgive?

When a young man is engaged to the girl of his choice, and deliberately neglects her, disregarding her letters, forcing her to break with him although she protests her love for him, has he a chance of remaining himself in her favor because at last he realizes he loves her?

Can love survive such treatment and remain true?

These are questions which deeply trouble "Major"—and well they may.

"Dear Miss Fairfax," he writes. "Your advice will be greatly appreciated on my problem.

"I am twenty years old and have a very good trade and a car. A year and a half ago I met a girl and became very much attached to her. After a courtship of about six months we were engaged to be married.

"Our parents consented. They liked us both very much and considered it a fair move to make. I went with her for two months after our engagement, and, being used to a single life and a lot of money, got a craving to see some of my friends.

"One Sunday I left and went with two of my boy friends and three girls on a trip. From that night on I didn't go to see my fiancée. I wrote me two letters and came to my home twice, but I disregarded her. She said to me, 'Major, there is not a girl in the wide world could love you as I do.'

"I have been running around ever since, and now I am so sick of this fast, wild life. My thoughts are of my friend only. I realize how deeply I love her. I want her. If ever a pair was mated, I honestly believe she and I were. Do you think, if she once loved me, she still could? Our mistakes are only realized after they are made. She means the world and all to me.

"JUST MAJOR."

You have made a frank statement of your case, Major, attempting rather to hide nor minimize the circumstances. That much is in your favor, for it indicates straightforward manliness.

You wish to know whether I think, in view of the facts set forth in your letter, that your former sweetheart can still love you.

The outlook for you is not very encouraging, is it? Deliberate abandonment of a fiancee, leading a fast life with other friends, ignoring her letters and personal appeals, do not afford a promising foundation for a reconciliation.

Your chances of winning her back again depend, it seems to me, on several circumstances.

First, is your reformation genuine? Or is it only a passing whim, to be succeeded by renewed craving for fast companions. Second, have you sufficient strength of character to maintain the stand you have taken, and continue loyal and kind to the girl you love should she consent to renew the engagement and pledge her life to your keeping?

Then there is her natural reaction to the situation which must be taken into consideration. Even though she still loves you, her pride may prompt her to deny that love which you have so humiliated and ignored. And—a still more serious aspect of the problem—her love for you may have died. For human love can be killed by cruelty and neglect.

But despite all these drawbacks of circumstance Major there is a chance—just a possibility that you may succeed in convincing her of your genuine and permanent reformation, your serious, deep love for her, and rekindling the flame of her affection. So much is at stake! Why do you not try?

Write her in the same spirit in which you have written me—frankly, simply, truthfully. Register the letter, to insure her receiving it. Ask her whether you may come to see her and talk things over.

Love is often stronger than death as strong and enduring as life itself. Since your former flame is "all the world to you," and there is not a girl in the wide world could love you" as she did, let us hope she will prove the depth, genuineness and endurance of her affection by listening to you kindly and giving you one more chance, which is the Loud you crave from her love.

Monte Blue to Stick With Warner Brothers

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Copyright, 1928, by Universal Service.

LOS Angeles, Oct 5—Monte Blue, clad in blue overalls and the regulation railroad shirt, paused a moment at Warner Brothers studio to talk movies. Last year Monte was chafing at the bit and told all who listen how he planned to leave Warners flat and go on his own. But subsequent events proved that there is no warfare so bad that the love of peace cannot heal it.

Jack Warner and Monte kissed and made up and a new contract was signed. Now Monte is happy and there is no more open friction. After he finishes the railroad story he will be starred in "No Defense," adapted from a novel by J. Raleigh Davis. Lloyd Bacon will direct.

I suppose it's to be a vitaphone. No really important pictures are being turned out from the Warner studios these days without Vitaphone. Funny thing, how we sort of classify all these sound pictures as Vitaphone or Movietone. That is because Warners and Fox first in the market.

BEING sold down the river hasn't seemed to affect the activities of First National any. They are going right along just as if the old mortgage hadn't been taken over by Warners and a possession sign placed in the front yard. What with pictures to deliver per schedule, Al Rockett isn't paying any attention to anything but getting out the work.

He has assigned Frank Lloyd to direct Richard Barthelmess in "Weary River," which, I believe, was announced in this column some time ago when Rockett purchased it for Richard Barthelmess.

The story is by Courtney Ryley Cooper and is a tale of a convict who sang his way to freedom over the radio. The radio is forever coming into our business, isn't it the truth?

IT'S a great day for the stage players on Broadway who have achieved any degree of recognition. What with talking pictures being made right on their doorstep, any one of them is apt to get an offer when he least expects it.

Frederick Marshall, who plays one of the important roles in "High Road," a stage play now running in New York, has been cast opposite Jeanne Eagels in "The Letter." Jean Limur, who went East some time ago to work for Paramount, will direct this talkie.

Miss Eagels photographs particularly well. In fact she was a surprise when she appeared with John Gilbert. The only trouble with Miss Eagels is her reputed temperament and I can't say anything about that, never having worked with her in a movie.

WHAT with "Gentlemen of the Press" and "Front Page" headed for motion pictures we are pretty apt to see our own craft headlined in the movies this coming year. Both plays deal with the Fourth Estate and do not spare the reporters nor their superior officers, the editors.

Soon, what with all the newspaper men writing plays, we won't have a secret left. Famous Players-Lasky have purchased "Gentlemen of the Press" and will, in all probability make it in the East. I am told that the Long Island studios are wide open and doing business every day.

WILLIAM DE MILLE is not taking any chance on breaking in new untried players in "Half an Hour." He apparently believes in the efficacy of stage training for whom did I see on the Paramount lot but Robert Edeson, stage actor with a pedigree a mile long, and H. B. Warner, who, a few years ago, was every matinee girl's secret arrow.

It is sort of mean to say a few years ago, for H. B. looks as well as he ever did in his life and certainly his acting has improved

This is the picture in which Ruth Chatterton will be starred. As for Ruthie, we have said plenty about her ability and we mean it.

THE comedians and comediennes sooner or later get together. Little Alberta Vaughan, who for a long time was F. B. O.'s biggest ace in the hole, will play the lead in "Money Talks" with Eddie Quillan. Miss Vaughan's specialty, if you remember, is comedy, and nobody could ever accuse Eddie of being anything but a comedian and he is a mighty good one too. Anybody who can make C. B. De Mille laugh while he is making a picture and forget what he is directing, is all wool and a yard wide.

* * *

THE movie planned so many times by the energetic Rosetta Duncan will have to wait. Rosetta and her fluffy-haired sister, Vivian, are opening in "Topsy and Eva" tonight at the Gaiety Theater. The prospects are for a long run. London likes the two sisters and when London has a favorite on the stage, the success of any play in which she appears is a foregone conclusion. It doesn't look now as if "Topsy and Eva" will come to Hollywood before long.

AUCTION BRIDGE
by WILBUR C. WHITEHEAD

BIDDING A THREE-SUITER.

A THREE-SUITER is a hand consisting of one five and two four-card suits, or of three four-card suits. Three-suiters are therefore either void of a suit or contain a singleton, and in consequence, the hand is biddable, one of the suits should be bid rather than No Trump.

A four-card suit should ordinarily not be bid with less honor swagth than the Ace-Jack, unless aiding considerable additional side swgth, and then usually only if thuit is a Minor. Granted the nessary quick-trick values in a thu-suited hand, the general principlo govern the bidding is that thu highest ranking biddable suit shes, as a rule, first be named. h exam-ple:

One Heart—
Spades —
Hearts—A Q J 2
Diamonds—A K 8 5
Clubs—A J 9 6

One Spade—
Spades—A K 8 6
Hearts—3
Diamonds—K Q 10 3
Clubs—A K 10 4

With these two illustrve hands one Diamond would, lever, be a justifiable alternate Min that it would better insure it by part-ner, or place the bidon a better position to double newly an ad-verse bid.

The choice of t two bids should be largely aster of per-sonal equation, t. affaced by a dependable partne tue Minor should be bid; othen the Major.

The alternate Ma bid should not, however, be stered if the highest ranking bide suit is a Major of five carar, if of bu four it is exceptiv strong in hp honors. For exile:

One Heart—

LITTLE JOURNEYS

By TEMPLE MANNING

GRETNA GREEN is famed in song and story as the scene for runaway marriages. Until a law was passed in 1856, a man and a woman could be married in Scotland merely by signifying, in the presence of witnesses, that they desired to be man and wife. The celebrant did not have to be ordained to perform the "ceremony." However, as a rule, one person, generally the blacksmith, had the monopoly, using his own form of service, and registering the names of the happy couples.

Even though the Marriage Law of Scotland now states that couples may not be married unless one of the parties has been a resident for twenty-one days before the ceremony, many couples still like the romantic idea of being married at Gretna Green, and almost every week sees a marriage performed at the celebrated blacksmith's shop.

But even if you do not wish to get married, it would be worth your while to cross the border and visit the village. The old smithy is a museum as well as a marriage bureau, and many interesting relics and remembrances of famous people who either visited there or were married there may be seen.

Home Hints

Adhesive tape is a most useful article to include in your holiday packing, when so often various cuts or hurts to hands or arms occur, but it is very difficult to get off again when desired. Try applying cold cream and then rubbing gently with a soft towel. The sticky marks will disappear like magic, leaving the skin perfectly smooth and without irritation.

Fine sand mixed with soft soap makes a most excellent scouring mixture for tables, boards, shelves, etc. It will also clean the black saucepans—where there are still any. As a natural fire extinguisher a box of sand should be kept in a recognized spot in every household.

A spoonful of vinegar added to the water in which a fowl is boiled will make it much more tender.

Impulse in Children

YOUR child is more or less a bundle of impulses. That is all the character it possesses. Its inhibitions are only beginning to be developed. As they develop from painful experiences, its impulses—that is to say, its reaction to stimuli, external and internal—are said to be "brought under control."

Impulsive acts in children deserve the special attention of parents and teachers because they enable us, by their very nature, to determine with considerable accuracy not only the child's makeup but also the outlook for its mental health. The knowledge of this special side of the child's life is important for preventive measures.

The principal and most primitive law of nervous activity is the reflex act. If a sharp point touches us, we jump; we do not know we are going to jump and we do not intend to jump, but it happens all the same. That is a reflex and automatic reaction to an external stimulus, the pin. As our development advances the tendency to direct reflex action becomes controlled, and thus a blind force is transformed into a conscious and determined one. Impulsive actions are the expression of a reflex phenomenon and are normal as long as they are under the control of the higher centers of the brain, but they become unhealthy when the equilibrium is interrupted. They are rapid and sudden and often repeated in a paroxysmal manner. The child may be conscious of them, but unable to control them, be quite unaware of them. The acts may depend on the exigencies of life or be quite unrelated to it.

They may take the form of gestures or words, ridiculous acts, stupid or extravagant acts, repulsive acts, wandering off aimlessly, thefts, destructive or incendiary acts or acts of violence. The problem is, therefore, a very vast one.

Here is one example: A girl of eight had had a series of infectious diseases—measles, whooping cough and diphtheria—and developed the curious habit of suddenly walking off for a minute in the middle of a conversation or at the table, and then would stop, surprised at herself and quite unable to remember what had occurred.

Children of advanced years who continue to perform strictly impulsive acts cannot be regarded as normal. They lack control and equilibrium. Very often they show characteristics of abnormality, such as lying, deception, queer feeling toward relatives, cruelty or apathy. Sometimes they are brilliant, clever and precocious.

Upon their management in these early years their whole future depends. Their mode of living, mental development and emotional life must all be different from that of normal children. The preparation for the future, for adolescence and manhood or womanhood should aim differently from the preparatory measures applied to normal life. Intellectual life must not be forced or hastened.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

LOVE APPLESAUCE!

You can feed it to me straight or diluted, cooked or raw, in large quantities or homeopathic doses, and I will swallow it without blinking. You can lay it on delicately with a palette knife or thick with a trowel—and some of it is bound to stick.

* * *

I love to be told how clever I am, how lovable I am, how pretty I am, and how beautifully I can write! I don't care whether you mean it or not—fill me with self-admiration, and all that spills over is YOURS!

* * *

Show me a man who says that he doesn't like to be flattered and I'll show you one who is fooling himself—or trying to fool YOU.

Everybody needs, wants and loves a cheer-leader! Every man (or woman) would find it worth the price if he could hire a professional booster to give him his daily dose of "banana oil." To tell him, every morning, how brilliant he is, how original and remarkable he is! To fill him with a superiority complex!

* * *

In order to do his best work, a man MUST feel pleased with himself! There may be a few egotists whose vanity requires deflating; but most of us are filled with a subconscious inferiority complex, underneath all our cockiness, which has to be fought like a bad liver.

* * *

The worst enemy you have in the world is not the man or woman who robs you of your money, but the one who tries to rob you of your SELF-ESTEEM. Your most dangerous enemy is the man or woman who drops little grains of self-doubt into your mind and stirs up your sleeping inferiority complex.

* * *

Never listen to the man who tells you all your little failings "because he's your honest friend." Find a nice DISHonest friend who will lie like a gentleman or a lady rather than depreciate you.

* * *

When we marry we always do so in the fond expectation of getting a permanent cheer-leader and unqualified admirer. Love dies when we discover that we have acquired only a life-critic. Love seldom dies from a big wound in the heart, but nearly always from a thousand little stabs in the vanity and pin-pricks in the self-esteem.

* * *

Nothing so takes the heart out of a man as to be told that he's made a fool of himself when he knows that it HASN'T—except to be told that he's made a fool of himself when he knows that he HAS!

NEW HIGHS ARE SET ON THE NEW YORK CURB

New York, Oct. 5 (AP)—A number of industrials went ahead briskly on the curb market today and about a dozen issues mounted 2 to 8 points to new high levels for the year or longer. Excellent profit taking, however, caused some irregularity throughout the list.

Marmon Motor was again a strong point, shooting up more than 5 points to a new top at 65, after yesterday's 7-point advance. Godchaux Sugar common and class A rose to a new top in less active trading. Aupossup Co., Celluloid, Zenith Radio, Colgate Palmolive, General Milk, Kimberly-Clark, Nichols & Shepherd, Pines Winter Front "A" and Schulte Real Estate went to new tops in gains of 2 to 5 points, while Spaulding jumped 10 points to anew peak.

America Fortunate

When the Rights of His Country Are at Stake, President Coolidge Stands Up for Them in the Old-Fashioned Way

Nothing endears President Coolidge to the American people more than his freedom from internationalism.

When the rights of his country are at stake, President Coolidge stands up for them in the old-fashioned way.

Now he refuses to discuss cancelling any more of France's debt in return for France cancelling some of Germany's war indemnity.

He says he can see no connection between France's war debt to the United States and Germany's war tribute to France.

Of course there is no such connection. Premier Poincare of France made the suggestion in the attempt to shift upon us some of the hatred Germany feels towards France.

Because of the decisive aid we gave in the war, France in this year getting over three hundred million dollars of reparations from Germany.

France refuses to pay us thirty million dollars of that money in a debt settlement which obligates her to pay us only fifty cents on the dollar.

The President on Tuesday let it be known that he foresees no success for "efforts to arrange for American taxpayers to pay German reparations."

Let that settle it.

Will YOU Vote?

Not Unless Your Name Is There

Former State Senator Patrick H. O'Connor, now a member of the Board of Election Commissioners, says there are 100,000 men and women "eligibles" in this city whose names are not on the voting lists.

The number is startling to say the least, but Commissioner O'Connor is in a position to know.

Some are not registered because of the belief, held quite generally, that in order to be enrolled they must have been residents of Boston on April 1st.

The law specifies that the period of residence must be six months, which throws the date back not to April but MAY 6TH.

If, therefore, you lived in Boston on the sixth day of May, last, you are eligible to vote here in next month's election.

Another sort of misunderstanding is keeping YOUNG voters from registration.

If you will be 21 years of age this month, or up to and including November 6th, you may register now and vote at this year's election.

Until Wednesday, October 17th, inclusive, the office of the Election Commissioners in the City Hall Annex will be open daily from 6 p. m. until 10 p. m.

Branch offices will be in operation at the same hours in each of the city's 22 wards and there will be NO excuse—except, perhaps, physical incapacity—for the man or woman who fails to register.

Don't say another word, pro-Hoover or pro-Smith, until YOU are on the list.

Beautiful Young Woman

She Has Found the Right "Career"

MRS. ROSAMOND PINCHOT GASTON, NOW WORKING FOR GOVERNOR SMITH'S ELECTION

This young woman, whom thousands saw when she played the part of the nun in "The Miracle," has found a better profession than the stage, the best profession of all, MARRIAGE AND MOTHERHOOD.

At this moment the brilliant, intelligent young daughter of Amos Pinchot is interesting herself in Governor Smith's campaign for President. Her job is "instructress" to women speakers for Governor Smith, teaching them how to "get across."

DO NOT HURRY, BUT KEEP MOVING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

LORD CHESTERFIELD says that a gentleman is never in a hurry.

This remark sounds rather uppish, but there is some truth in it.

All violence, loud speaking and hurry are signs of weakness. "He that believeth shall not make haste."

If one is sure of himself and that his position is founded upon the truth, he knows that the stars in their courses are fighting for him and he doesn't have to bluff or bluster.

Lynching negroes, burning witches, staging bloody revolutions, assassinating tyrants and all capital punishments are signs that we are not quite sure what to do.

You can hurt a man's feelings much more by what you say calmly than by cursing at him and shouting.

Hurry breeds nervousness.

The woman comes to the end of her day with her nerves a-jangle, her back aching and her head heavy, because all day she has hurried; she never had, or never took, the time to do things with system and care.

Hurry and worry are twins.

Many a boy ruins his career and handicaps himself for life by leaving high school before graduation, because he is in a hurry to get into business.

Many a foolish couple spend their lives in friction and unhappiness, because they got married in a hurry.

The engine breaks down, the bridge collapses, the wall topples, the manufactured product is rejected for defectiveness, because workmen were careless and in a hurry to get the job done.

Battles are lost because generals were in a hurry.

Laws are passed that do infinite mischief, because they were enacted in a hurry without due deliberation.

Lives are lost because the surgeon was in a hurry.

Most of the failures that have tumbled into the pit of incompetency got there by being in a hurry.

The opposite and alternative of hurry is not sloth or laziness; it is intelligent diligence.

Hurry is the penalty often for lack of forethought.

If you want to get there on time, start on time; don't wait until the last minute, and then hurry.

In fine, if you would be (1) efficient, (2) skillful, (3) healthy, (4) unworried, (5) safe, (6) agreeable to others, (7) well bred, and (8) happy—don't hurry.

But keep moving. (Copyright, McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I READ so many articles by women about men. Almost always they warn Us Girls that men can't be trusted. According to these lady authors, the best thing a man does is to lie in wait and leap upon unsuspecting maidens. And if, perchance, he does marry one of them, she must thereafter manage and cajole him with a thousand wiles.

Which certainly leads me a laugh!

For all my life I've been surrounded by these so-called predatory papas, and I've never yet seen one of them act up to such melodramatic specifications. Although I'll confess I have consistently hoped for the worst.

I grew up in California in the days when the scenery was littered with coyotes, cuspidors, faro joints, fandango halls, "rot-gut" whiskey, sawed-off shotguns and Big Boys with Whiskers. Which ought to breed 'em rough, if anything can. I subsequently married males, mined with them and watched them sell bum oil stock, cheat at stud poker, cry over the memory of the dear little girls they'd left far, far behind, shoot each other up and get their hair dyed. In short, I have known males in all their more intimate crises, and I've yet to see one of them, drunk or sober, that couldn't be controlled by a few kind words and a good beef stew.

As for these frightful traditions concerning man's lower nature, I think it's downright cruel to raise a young girl's hopes that way. There's simply nothing to it.

Getting herself insulted is one of the most difficult feats for any female to accomplish nowadays.

Since women began going in for all these free, wide-open spaces in their costumes, men have grown so blase that a girl actually has to use hypnotism, and maybe a little ether, to get them even look her way, much less make passes at her.

And as for managing men after marriage—

The great trick is to find a real, lively, interesting UNMANAGEABLE one.

Naturally every girl likes them violent. I am no exception. Time and again I've set my heart on some male, hoping he'd heave me around, beat me up regular, break my proud spirit and pep up life in general.

ONLY TO FIND THAT HE EXPECTED ME TO SELECT HIS NECKTIES, ADMIRE HIS SALADS, LAUGH AT HIS MASH NOTES AND SHAVE HIS NECK.

Give the average male a comfortable easy chair, a good radio and a handy pair of old slippers and he'll snuggle right down and stay lassoed for life. For the devastating truth is that men are not the Big Brutal Bluffers they've been cracked up to be. And the girl that starts out with one of these coaxing-cajoling-manipulating techniques is certainly out of luck.

But though he rarely qualifies as a villian, the male of the species is a good guy, nevertheless, and well worth the investment. Trust him and he'll be loyal to you. Tell him your honest need and he'll come across like a gentleman. Flatter him a little, and he'll do his darnest to live up to it. Give him your whole-hearted, good-natured love and he'll make you feel like thirty cents by putting you on a shrine and worshipping you forever after.

And that's the real dope on that simple, sweet and sometimes sappy creature—Man.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 5—Thoughts while strolling: The little book shop where clerks wear lapel flowers. Who's responsible for caviar? And why? Neal O'Hara, the Boston humorist, who looks like Mayor Walker. An art gallery has an exhibition of carved white soap.

Ann Pennington's long hair. Whist's become of cuspidors with red rosebud decorations? The windowless gloom of large storage warehouses. Tea room sign: "We haven't a radio." Ring Lardner, a Niles, Mich., boy, who made good in the city. Girls in kimonos motoring somewhere.

People in hotel writing rooms who look thoughtful and nibble at the ends of pens. A velvet darkness. Silver streaks of rain. And a radiant sun again. Like a world in quick tears. Eva La Gallien's ivory pallor. Those cafes known as "French"—with lump gilt mirrors, a cat and basement entrances with peepholes.

That shaven hideousness on the necks of beautiful girls. Rarely see anyone in a theatrical costume shop. They have a ghostliness. The race track followers with large blond wives. A taxi driver smoking a corncob pipe. An Arctic explorer who walks the streets hatless.

Unfortunates going to park benches early to be sure of a place. Young blades who tug at their mustaches with a mysterious, musing air. The irrepressible press agent twins—Holzman and Dorfman. Lingerie shops with esthetic names.

Those Broadwaytes who wear Texas hats and give the impression they own a couple of oil wells. Armenian rug sellers blinking in side street hallways. The reputed highest salaried show girl—$250 a week. Men who saunter about in Tuxedos before dark.

Lovely, lawless maidens with grim smiles. Headwaiters take their posts. Orchestras tuning up. Day swoons into twilight. A huge sign bursts into the fire. The barrier flies up. And Broadway is off for another night.

THE Rialto has many ladies classed in the Broadway world as "good girls." They accept after-theater invitations from slight acquaintances, but have acquired a manner that commands a certain respect. Yet they are gentle grafters. Some pick up as much as $50 a week in "taxi money," when they leave late parties it is the custom of the host to give them taxi fare home. This ranges from five to ten dollars. As most of them are in the chorus, the extra money is so much plush.

THE fluctuations in prices of orange juice in sundry hotels is a metropolitan phenomenon. In smart hotels the breakfast price ranges from 40 to 50 cents a glass. At the noon hour it goes to 60 and after 4 o'clock it sometimes vo planes to 80 cents. This is due, of course, to the cocktail demand during these hours and helps, no doubt to pay for the wear and tear of cocktail rodeos. Many hotels say they could eliminate cocktail drinking in rooms they could lower prices. One big hotel reports an average damage of $1000 a week from the spotting of carpets and walls with drinks and the careless leaving of lighted cigarette stubs on floors and furniture.

RECENT brides have suffered humiliation and embarrassment as the result of letters received during honeymoons from someone with a mental twist. The letters were couched in tender terms of intimacy and held an intimation there was something between them beyond ordinary friendship. The idea was to plant a suspicion in the minds of grooms and in several cases it worked. Several years ago a man was arrested for this offense. His excuse was his marriage had proved unhappy and he was just "getting even." A nasty way to pout.

"YOU fellows who write newspaper columns acquire an inflated value of your importance," writes someone in block letters. All right, all right. But there is a hot tip that out of one hundred million people in the U. S. we are among them. Doesn't that count for anything?

In theater talk that means how to make your meaning reach the minds before you. Young Mrs. Gaston learned about that while she was on the stage. Governor Smith is fortunate in having her and would be more fortunate if she could go out and speak for him, instead of teaching others to speak.

This is written to call your attention to the beauty and earnestness in this young face.

Miss Rosamond Pinchot, when she raced around the theater in "The Miracle," or as an ambitious young girl, before her theater work, was pleasant to look at, beautiful, athletic, everything that an unmarried American girl could be.

But she is now a great deal MORE, and her face shows it.

It shows in its earnestness that there is only one profession worthy of woman, and that is MARRIAGE AND MOTHERHOOD.

The Lord created Adam and Eve in six days of one week and rested on the seventh. Women creates her children, sometimes as many as a dozen, and NEVER rests thereafter until the beginning of her long, last sleep.

Her days and nights are devoted to her children when they are babies. The care continues through childhood, and the mother's real troubles begin when sons and daughters near the marrying age.

When the children are married the next crop of children appear, and the grandmothers take care of them.

But it is all well worth it.

And as this fine young American face, so full of feeling, proves there is only one career worth while for a girl, and that is MOTHERHOOD.
